Twins Are Pets of Tofield District

THERE ARE STILL problems ahead, but for Mr. and Mrs. Bud Townsend, Tofield, parents of Siamese twins, there is happiness today because children born November 17 continue in good health. Only known Siamese twins in Canada, tots are pets of the entire Tofield district.

VARIATIONS IN WEIGHT have been shown by Tofield twins. At birth, November 17, they weighed nine pounds, 12 ounces. This dropped to eight pounds, but when Nurse Marie Slavik placed them on scales yesterday, hands tipped nine pounds, two ounces.

Little Girls Top Favorites

TOFIELD, Dec. 3—Two little baby girls who lie face to face in a hospital crib have captured the heart of this tiny town 50 miles southeast of Edmonton.

They are the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. "Bud" Townsend and their birth at Tofield Municipal Hospital two weeks ago last Thursday focussed international attention on this obscure Alberta settlement.

For the bodies of Beverley Lynn and Brenda Carol Townsend are united at the abdomen. They are Canada's only living Siamese twins.

HOPE FOR NORMALCY

Yesterday I watched as 20-year-old Betty Townsend held her little daughters in her arms.

Their mother looked with loving eyes on these two babies and she voiced the hope that her little girls may some day live normal lives.

For Beverley and Brenda look and act like normal babies. They eat and sleep like normal babies. Nurses at the small hospital say they have less trouble with Brenda and Beverley than with other children.

TO CONSULT SPECIALISTS

But only a difficult operation—which may or may not be performed—can set the little girls free to live normal lives.

Police Open Douk Drive

Anti-Terror Drive Begins

From CP and BUP Dispatches

VICTORIA, B.C., Dec. 3.—An eight-man special police detail flew into Doukhobor country today as the government put the heat on the fanatical Sons of Freedom faction, apparently, to end, once and for all, the seemingly-senseless violence in south-central British Columbia.

Six more will be flown to the Kootenays Monday and at least 10 officers will be dispatched to the scene from other parts of the province. It's the government's answer to threats from Nelson, B.C., that vigilante action will be taken unless authorities act at once.

In Ottawa, Justice Minister Garson told the Commons [illegible] members of the RCMP have been dispatched to Nelson, B.C., to help quell disturbances caused by Doukhobors.

Recent dynamite bombings of railway track near Nelson, blamed on the Sons of Freedom, prompted this latest crackdown on the terrorism that has swept the Kootenay valley since the Doukhobors split into two factions shortly after their arrival in Canada from Russia 50 years ago.

HOMEMADE FUSES

Homemade fuses, a symbol of the Sons of Freedom, were used a week ago to detonate two dynamite blasts that ripped up 30 feet of Canadian Pacific Railway track east of Nelson. Trainmen, since then, have threatened to quit work in Doukhobor country unless some protection is given them.

Today, patrol cars precede all trains travelling the Doukhobor routes and special railway guards have been placed at strategic bridges.

Another track bombing two weeks ago was within 20 feet of a railway bridge. Trainmen said it's worth their lives to travel unprotected.

Just what the special police squads will do in the area was not disclosed by Premier Byron Johnson, who announced their departure. He said a new plan to curb the violence had been evolved but its details could not be told "for security reasons."

Extra squads of police, many in

STALIN LINE SWITCHES BACK

BUCHAREST, Dec. 3.—(AP)—The Cominform Journal today quoted a Soviet spokesman as saying Premier Stalin's 1934 statement that capitalism and communism can exist peacefully side by side "forms the basis of Soviet Russia's foreign policy."

The pronouncement was attributed to Mihail Alexandrovich Suslov, Russian delegate to the recent cominform meeting in Hungary.

Defence Makes Surprise Move In Murder Case

CALGARY, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—The defence counsel for 42-year-old William Lee Wallace, w[illegible] arged with the murder of a Pincher Creek waitress, has made a surprise move.

Lawyer E. J. McCormick today will ask the Alberta Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus under which Wallace would be admitted to bail.

If bail is not granted, McCormick will ask that Wallace's twice-postponed preliminary hearing begin immediately, and that one, George Salisbury, be produced.

Salisbury was allegedly residing at the Calgary auto camp at which 24-year-old waitress Yvonne Levesque was killed last August.

ALLEGED CONFESSION

McCormick says he has been unsuccessful in his attempts to find out—from Calgary police—the whereabouts of Salisbury.

Wallace allegedly confessed in Detroit to the slaying of Miss Levesque after an all-night drinking party in the auto camp. Another person allegedly present at the party was 33-year-old Donald Henderson.

George Salisbury stopped in Regina briefly today en route to his home in the Channel Islands and said he wanted it known he was on his way home after Calgary police had taken a statement from him and allowed him to leave.

Salisbury telephoned the Regina Leader-Post today and said he was with Wallace at the time the murder was reported to have been committed and that Wallace had "nothing to do" with the crime.

Sale of Hotel Is Rumored

Early sale of the Selkirk Hotel building at 101 street and Jasper avenue for $500,000 was rumored here today.

The three-storey brick structure, one of Edmonton's oldest landmarks, is owned by McDougall & Secord, real estate firm of Edmonton.

Although immediate confirmation of the rumored sale could not be obtained, it is known a Winnipeg group holds an option for purchase of the building, which expires Dec. 15.

The Selkirk building, containing the 100-room hotel and Johnson's Cafe, is at present leased to Robt. McDonald, proprietor of the Selkirk and Yale hotels.

Milk Business Triples As Floods Continue To Harry Vancouver

By KNOWLTON NASH

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—Some 25,000 Lower Fraser Valley residents drank milk and boiled water today as emergency crews hunted a three-day-old break in their main water supply.

A water main running under the raging Coquitlam River was broken Thursday and the district had been without fresh water since then. G. M. Gilbert, engineering superintendent of the Greater Vancouver water board, anticipated an emergency pipeline would be installed by late today.

WORK FEVERISHLY

One hundred and fifty men manned cranes, bulldozers, pumps and compressors and were working around the clock to lay a half-mile long emergency steel pipeline to the stricken area. "We're not going to stop until it's fixed," Gilbert said.

Divers, hunting under the glare of underwater searchlights, were unable to find the break last night because the river was moving too swiftly, Gilbert said.

A 250,000-gallon emergency water storage tank at Maple Ridge, B.C., was drained yesterday as city and provincial officials connected it to city mains.

Housewives at Port Coquitlam, Maple Ridge, Haney, Hammond, Webster's Corners, Pitt Meadows and other points along the Coquitlam were cut off from normal water supply channels. Most of them were carting buckets from nearby creeks and boiling the water for use as they prepared meals.

Milk distributors reported three times their normal business.

Water thus became the main topic of conversation in Vancouver today.

Wealth and People To Increase in Canada

By Douglas How

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent pictured Canada yesterday as a country that will be absorbing "increasing numbers" of immigrants and witnessing "vast new undertakings" in the development of resources.

He fitted the establishment of three new departments of the federal government into that picture and said they are designed to help bring it about.

The Commons co-operated by adopting the bills that provide the legislative basis for establishing departments of resources and development, mines and technical surveys, citizenship and immigration. The existing departments of mines and resources and reconstruction and supply will vanish.

Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) suggested appointment of an Albertan to the cabinet as a result of the change.

He argued, however, that this could be done without adding to the present total of 21 ministers.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not accept Mr. Graydon's contention that the cabinet should not be enlarged.

Other than a new deputy minister and a minister, however, the prime minister saw no need for any further increase.

Mr. St. Laurent said Canada's thousands of new post-war settlers have fitted into Canadian life with little trouble for anyone.

Town in Path Of Lava River

CATANIA, Sicily, Dec. 3—(UP)—A steaming river of molten lava from Mt. Etna swallowed up three big vineyards and oozed relentlessly on through pine forests today toward the little town of Bronte, five miles away.

Inhabitants of Bronte and nearby Adrano and Randazzo apprehensively watched the clouds of steam thrown up by the molten rock as it inched down the snow-covered slopes of Mt. Etna toward them.

They were ready to evacuate their homes at the first signal from police and scientists keeping a close tab on the progress of the eruption.

HEAVY RAIN FALLS

A heavy rain was falling. It turned the inches of dust showered on the countryside by the eruption yesterday into a thick muck.

Two of the three streams of lava spewed forth from the volcano when it blew its top yesterday for the first time in nearly three years had come to a halt, at least temporarily.

But the third, boiling out of a crater nearly 1,000 feet in diameter, 5,940 feet up Etna, still was moving slowly down the mountainside in an S-course. It covered three large vineyards and invaded two pine forests on the Cavallaro and Pappalardo estates.

Canada Will Use 'Miracle' Drugs

Researchers Are Promised Cortisone, Acth Supplies

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—No effort will be spared by Canada in helping develop two new drugs "which seem to have extremely valuable results in the treatment of a number of diseases," Health Minister Martin said last night.

He told the Commons of progress in discovery of the drugs, Acth and Cortisone. Both have shown promise in treatment of arthritis and other diseases.

At all times cautious, Mr. Martin told an attentive Commons "it should be emphasized the work which has been carried on for some months still is in the experimental stage."

LITTLE AVAILABLE

Speaking on health-department estimates, he told of development of the drugs. He stressed that amounts available can barely supply research needs.

"I can say nothing about the future, but at the present time what quantity will be available to us—and it will be made available to us Jan. 1—will be solely for experimental research purposes."

Discussing experiments, Mr. Martin said that in April Dr. Philip Hench of Mayo Clinic gave a public demonstration to medical scientists of the effects of the use of cortisone on arthritis patients.

MUCH PROMISE

"The results were almost miraculous, and because of this the Drug, cortisone, has been associated popularly with arthritis. It should be emphasized, however, that this drug has not yet proved itself even for this single disease. It should be emphasized that it seems to show promise for other diseases also."

Acth showed similar promise, "not only for arthritis but for other diseases."

Mr. Martin said the durgs are difficult to produce. The synthesis of cortisone requires several months and 37 individual stages of preparation that can only be carried out by highly-skilled steroid chemists.

Twins Favorites Of Tofield Area

twins, said yesterday he had hope for the baby girls.

"We must wait until they grow stronger before anything can be done," he said.

The doctor is planning consultations with specialists in Edmonton "within two or three weeks."

PERFECT LITTLE DARLINGS

Meanwhile, Beverley and Brenda are the centre of attention at Tofield's modern little hospital.

Nurses almost fight for the privilege to care for the twins.

Said Matron Catherine Kozak: "I think they're wonderful."

And the babies' mother is convinced "those babies are getting thoroughly spoiled."

Mrs. Townsend's mother, Mrs. David Scott of Viking, is here looking after her daughter who went home from the hospital last Saturday.

Grandmother Scott thinks Beverley and Brenda are "perfect little darlings."

They are, too.

The little girls smiled when flash bulbs popped in their nursery. They didn't cry. They just gurgled and smiled.

Matron Kozak said the children have been hungry "right from the start."

She said they act independently, one sleeping perhaps, while the other cries and kicks in hunger.

She said they suffer no pain from being joined.

Tofield is pulling for little Brenda and Beverley. "Our neighbors have been wonderful," said 22-year-old Bud Townsend, a stockkeeper at Northwestern Utilities here.

And people in far-off places have sent messages of hope and gifts to tiny, blonde Mrs. Townsend.

Mrs. Townsend showed me a letter from a woman in Surrey, England, who last February gave birth to Siamese twins.

"And there was a box of chocolates from a woman in Holland," said Betty Townsend.

Bud Townsend said he and his pretty wife are hoping, but not counting too much on the results of an operation.

PRAISE FOR DOCTOR

Both were quick to give praise to Dr. Freebury. "There should have been two doctors," said Mrs. Townsend, "but there wasn't time. The nurses who helped him were wonderful, too."

Betty Townsend went for her first walk outdoors yesterday, then rode with Bulletin photographer Eric Bland and myself to the hospital to see her twin daughters.

It was her first visit with them since she left hospital a week ago today.

She held them and touched their tiny heads. "Look," she called to her husband, "their hair is getting quite long."

Alaska Crash Kills Nurse

PETERSBURG, Alaska, Dec. 3.—(UP)—The coast guard cutter Hemlock battled rough seas today to reach five survivors of a seaplane which crashed on an island during a snowstorm, killing one passenger.

The plane, a twin-engined Grumann ran into the storm yesterday on a flight from Juneau to Ketchikan. It was forced down on Gut Island, near the mouth of the turbulent Stikine river.

Alaska coastal airlines identified the dead passenger as Mrs. Harriet Bell, of Kake, Alaska, a nurse attached to Wrangell institute. Another passenger suffered a broken leg, and the pilot, Mike Fenster, was 'shaken up," the company said.

Bad weather and tide hampered rescue operations, delaying the cutter Hemlock dispatched from Ketchikan.

plain clothes and some with long-standing records as undercover operators, were on their way to the Nelson area for an unspecified length of time.

Authorities fear reprisals by radical Doukhobors against conviction of eight of their number on arson and dynamiting charges. The eight are awaiting sentence.

CURFEW DEMANDED

Nelson businessmen, through their Board of Trade, have demanded a curfew be imposed on Doukhobors, but this would be nothing new to the Sons of Freedom sect, against whom previous curfews have been only partially effective.

The police plan was being coordinated by B.C. Provincial Police Commissioner John Shirras and Col. J. E. Mead, a retired Royal Canadian Mounted Police deputy commissioner.

Shirras was assigned to the case by provincial authorities, while Mead was called in by the federal government. Mead is considered to be an expert on Doukhobor matters.

The Sons of Freedom, the radical faction of B.C.'s 12,000 Doukhobors, have waged an incessant campaign against their orthodox brothers and what they term "man-made" laws. There are about 5,000 of them.

One of them, convicted recently of deliberately burning a new, $27,000 school at Tarrys, B.C., summed up their feelings by declaring:

"I AM FREE NOW"

"I was fulfilling the will of our Almighty Father. I was free in my conscience. I am free now. I am not guilty."

That Doukhobor, Peter Swetlishkoff, who has not yet been sentenced, charged during his trial that Michal (The Archangel) Verigin mailed him sketches and instructions for bombings and firings.

Senator Asks Irrigation For Prairie Areas

OTTAWA, Dec. 3—(CP) — The senate yesterday gave final approval to a bill amending the prairie farm assistance act to extend its application.

Senator W. A. Duchanan (L—Alberta) foresaw the day, although "not in my time," when advances in irrigation would overcome the need for measures to assist farmers suffering crop failures.

Occasionally there were complaints that Canada was spending too much money on prairie assistance. If this were so, it was the fault of the government for encouraging settlement of the area in the first place. He deprecated recent suggestions in various quarters that people should be moved from the prairies into other areas.

Wherever possible, irrigation schemes should be advanced. It was a slow and costly process, but it had paid off in the area of Lethbridge, his home town.

"I hope the time will come when parliament will not have to vote this kind of assistance," he said.

At Least 3 Die in Fire

NORMAN, Okla., Dec. 3—(UP)—A flash fire whipped through a wooden two-storey men's dormitory at the University of Oklahoma before dawn today, killing at least three students and injuring more than a score.

Several hours after the building burned to the ground, a dozen searchers began moving gingerly the smoldering embers. They found three bodies at the edge of the east wing—too burned for immediate recognition.

More than a score of students were injured as they dashed through doorways or leaped from windows to escape the flames.

SIX YEARS' work with beaver is beginning to pay off for William Benesch, Wildwood, provincially-licensed beaver rancher who exhibited this specimen at Fur Breeders' Association show.

No Feed Worries On Beaver Farm

By J. V. O'Neill
Bulletin Staff Writer

Why not farm an animal that puts up its own feed? William Benesoh six years ago asked himself that question, and now he has the answer.

Today, Mr. Benesch has a secluded and tidy little ranch in the Wildwood district about 95 miles west of Edmonton, off the Jasper highway, and 20 acres is home to nearly 100 domestically - raised beaver.

Mr. Benesch claims he is the only government - licenced beaver rancher in the province, and that there is a lot of hard work and expense in meeting the conditions necessary to obtain a licence.

First of all, he had to fence the area in such a manner that the determined animals could not escape.

Afterward he had to establish conditions that would be favorable to the animals and that would tend to lessen their instinct to roam to new and different streams.

When the government was satisfied he had a suitable beaver-raising area, he obtained a licence to capture 10 wild beaver.

FAMILY TREE

He caught only two.

Now their family tree has sprouted a hundred branches.

"What made you go into beaver?" is a question frequently asked Mr. Benesch.

He replies that he got tired of nursing livestock and laboring in the lumbering industry.

"In this climate we have to put up a seven-month supply of fodder for our livestock, and as a lad I was pitching hay beside a creek where busy beaver were putting up a winter's food supply when the idea struck me—why not farm an animal that puts up its own feed."

It has been a long, hard pull in getting his family of beavers to the point where returns on investment are starting to come in.

This fall he has collected $1,500 for 14 beaver purchased for breeding purposes by producers in Maine, Pennsylvania and Ontario.

LIKE GREEN SHOOTS

Beaver are pretty well self-sustaining once they get accustomed to domestic conditions, said Mr. Benesch.

In their native habitát beavers have a number of enemies explained Mr. Benesch.

Horned owls, certain species of hawks, mink, coyotes, bears, dogs and man.

Worst offenders are young boys with rifles, said Mr. Benesch.

A bullet-stricken beaver generally manages to dive into deep water and will sink like a rock. On most any "beaver creek" you can find some rotting carcasses among the driftwood in summertime," he said.

What bacon and eggs are to man, green poplar shoots are to beaver. Young and old beaver have a liking for rolled oats and the young can be raised on cow's milk.

City Taxpayers Assume Deficit

Hospitalization Plans Do Not Cover All Costs

City taxpayers are paying 30 per cent of ordinary charges for maternity cases which come under the Alberta government's "free hospitalization" plan.

Since January 1, 1948, Edmonton's Royal Alexandra hospital has paid $81,211 toward cost of the scheme here, while the province has chipped in $196,480.

In the case of old age and blind pensioners, recipients of mothers' allowance, and dependents of all three groups, the city is contributing 19 per cent to the cost of hospitalization which is said to be "free" and borne totally by the province.

"Provincial politicians are making good fellows of themselves at the expense of someone else," said one civic official not connected with the Royal Alexandra hospital. Hospital officials decline comment.

COSTS ARE UP

Despite an increase of 90 cents per day over the past two years in government contribution to class A hospitals, costs of operation have rocketed so much since 1944 that hospitals find themselves in a worse financial position than before the boosts were granted, it was reported.

Total daily ward cost to the hospital of caring for a birth is $11, made up of $8.79 for the mother and $2.21 for the baby.

The government had laid down a scale of grants totalling $6.90 per day, which it will not exceed. It is broken down into a $5.50 per day public ward payment for the mother, a 70-cents per day hospital grant for mother, and 70 cents per day for the newborn child.

That leaves a $4.10 gap which city taxpayers must meet.

In the case of pensioners, mothers' allowance recipients, and their dependents, the province pays $6.30 per day for their hospitalization. With total cost to the hospital $8.79 per day, the city taxpayer is again left holding the bag to the tune of $2.49.

From Jan. 1, 1948, to Oct. 31, 1949, that has cost the city $36,661.86, while the province has paid $156,807.

Adding confusion to the maternity situation is the fact that expectant mothers are entitled only to routine public ward care under the plan instituted in 1944.

When they leave hospital, they are presented with a bill for any X-rays, drugs, or other extras over and above actual public ward care during confinement.

TB CASES

Tuberculosis patients in Royal Alex create another deficit for the hospital, despite the fact that TB cases in all forms are a wholly provincial responsibility.

Alberta pays the city a grant of $4.05 per day for them, on the basis that they do not need as much care as other patients, and their stays are generally longer.

But it makes no allowance for the hospital having to keep 37 beds set aside in readiness for TB cases at provincial request and there is no grant for beds not occupied.

As one official summed it up, "the province offers these things as free services, the public get them, and the city pays for them."

Railwayman Retires

Veteran of 41 years' service with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, Joseph Abbott French, land inspector, department of natural resources, with headquarters at Hardisty, retired on pension Dec. 1.

CLAIM IS FILED

A statement of claim totalling $75,986.75 against Athabasca Utilities Ltd., has been filed at court house here by legal representatives of Peter Manchur, of Coolidge.

Mr. Manchur is basing his claim on permanent physical disabilities allegedly received when he was trapped in an explosion and fire which destroyed an Athabasca store building Dec. 10, 1948.

The claim charges the defendant company with negligence in inspection and correction of faulty gas piping and mains in and near the store building.

Darling to Head Colombia Group

Harold Darling, retired RCMP assistant-commissioner, said today he hopes to lead a six-man Canadian mission to Colombia next year to revamp the identification system in the South American country.

Mr. Darling, now provincial commissioner of the Order of St. John in Alberta, said he expected that Sgt. N. A. Goodfellow, RCMP Ottawa, will retire from the force to join the mission.

Darling was in Colombia last summer examining the country's civil identification system and making recommendations for a new one.

Stamp auction will feature meeting of Edmonton Stamp Club in the public library, Monday evening at 7:30. Members with changes in address or classification are requested to notify the secretary.

Parking Lot Now Forest Of Meters

City of Edmonton has gone into the parking lot business in a big way on property immediately behind the Sprague Furniture Building on Jasper avenue.

Car owners working in buildings in the area found the city-owned lots fairly bristling with 24 parking meters as they arrived at work yesterday morning.

City has provided a special rate of two-hours for five cents.

BASEMENT FILLED

Parking lot is on site of former warehouse building destroyed by fire some years ago. Property was turned over to the city by W. T. Henry. Recently the city filled in the basement.

Installation of the parking meters has met with a mixed reception. Some motorists, who work in nearby offices, are hostile at what they term a new money-making scheme being instituted by the city away from main traffic thoroughfares. Others are pleased with the meters, contending they will prevent transient parking.

City Commissioner D. B. Menzies said the meters were installed because of a flood of requests from car owners working in nearby offices.

Expanded Police Force

The news revealed by Chief Constable Reg Jennings that Edmonton's police department is to undergo expansion and that the central police station is to be enlarged is naturally gratifying to The Edmonton Bulletin which has consistently and emphatically urged a larger force for many months.

It has been obvious to most people, certainly to this newspaper, that the police force, in the bustling, crime-laden days of 1949, should be larger per capita than it was in the peaceful small-town days of 20 years ago.

It has also been apparent to most people, as it has to The Bulletin, that this improvement in the police department should be effected without waiting for some disaster to reveal police weakness as the disaster of the Northern Hardware fire revealed the weakness of the fire department.

This view is now apparently shared by the civic administration and it remains to be hoped that the enlargement of the force will be of an adequate nature and that mechancial devices for combatting crime, such as prowler cars with two-way radio, will be increased as well as personnel.

It is to be hoped, also, that measures for the rehabilitation of the force will include an increase in salary to constables to bring that salary to the level of that paid in other western cities so that Edmonton can attract the finest type of police recruits.

The proposal to enlarge the central police station raises another point which should have the fullest consideration of council and commissioners.

It is, of course, a matter of technical policy on which we are not competent to offer an expert opinion. But it seems to us that the police authority should weigh very carefully the merits of decentralization in the new set-up.

The question, in brief, is this:

Would anything be gained by establishing sub-stations or precinct houses throughout the city rather than by centralizing everything in the north side and south side headquarters?

If we are going to have a bigger and better force, no point, however small, should be overlooked to make that force efficient in the highest possible degree.

The Only Scandal in Judges' Salaries

"Scandalous" is the term applied by Angus MacInnis, CCF member of parliament for Vancouver East, to the bill which will raise the salary of the chief justices of Canada from $20,000 to $25,000 and the salaries of puisne judges from $16,000 to $20,000.

The only scandalous feature of this bill is that it fails to raise the salaries of superior court judges commensurately.

Mr. MacInnis appears to think it is a crying shame that chief justices of the supreme court of Canada should receive $25,000 a year while many wage-earners hardly make a decent livelihood.

He forgets that one of the greatest assets of these wage-earners and one of the reasons they enjoy freedom and justice is the quality of the Canadian judiciary which guarantees legal liberty to everyone.

That high judicial level cannot be maintained unless the finest legal minds are persuaded to go on the bench.

But the finest legal minds usually make much more than $25,000 a year.

There is, then, a growing reluctance on the part of the most capable barristers to accept judicial appointments. Unless this reluctance is overcome, the level of the judiciary is bound to fall.

But these arguments which apply with such force to the supreme court of Canada, apply with equal force to the superior courts of all the provinces.

If puisne judges of the supreme court are given $20,000 a year, and they are undeniably worth it, judges of the superior courts should get more than the present $12,000 and $13,000 a year.

The fact that they are not getting it constitutes the only scandal.

"Was Made Flesh and Dwelt Among Us"

The imminence of that sacred festival called Christmas, which celebrates the birth into the world of our Savior Jesus Christ, renders necessary to the Christian a complete understanding of all this miraculous birth implies.

The story of the events which precede Christ's birth is told fully in St. Luke's Gospel.

We read there how the Archangel of God approached the Blessed Virgin Mary and told her that she would conceive a Son by the Holy Ghost and that this Son would be the Redeemer of the world.

Every reference in the Gospels, in the epistles or any other books of the New Testament to the origin of Christ lays emphasis on His oneness with God.

And the Old Testament prophecy that foretells His coming carries exactly the same note.

The preface to St. John's Gospel is very clear and direct. In what is perhaps the most beautiful and most powerful passage in all the Holy Scriptures, it begins:

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by Him; and without Him was not anything made that was made. In Him was life, and the life was the light of men."

The first point to be emphasized, then, is the eternal nature of Christ. Christ was not merely created at a point in time to perform a certain function. He was with God in the very beginning of all things. He was God. He was and is the Second Person of the Holy Trinity and as the Creed goes on to say is "very God of very God, begotten, not made, being of one substance with the Father; by whom all things were made."

Christ, then, had existed through all time in unity with His Father and the Holy Ghost. He was with His Father and the Holy Ghost the Creator of all things.

It was not, then, merely another baby with a high and holy purpose who was born at Christmastide.

It was God Himself who had come into the world.

And as the preface to St. John's Gospel says in its tremendous way:

"That was the true light, which lighteth every man, that cometh into the world."

"And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us."

ODDS AND ENDS

By Harold L. Weir

Intimate Conversation With a Very Young Man

My daughter in Toronto said;

"This is apricots, this is pablum and this is spinach. Will you try to feed it to Doodles while I bring in the clothes?"

I said I would try.

WEIR

So I yanked up Doodles in his high-chair, adjusted Doodles' bib and wondered if Doodles loathed his pet name as much as I did.

I got one shot of pureed apricots down Doodles' little gullet and was working on a spoonful of pablum when Doodles ejected a mouthful of the abominable stuff on my necktie, pushed plate, spoon and all to the floor and said "Nuts!"

Thinking I had imagined the ejaculation, I said in facetious fashion:

"I suppose what you want is a porterhouse steak rare and a plate of French fried."

Doodles said;

"You're darn tootin'."

This was shocking. It was shocking, in the first place, because the use of slang and near-profanity does not run in my family. Personally I never use the stuff.

It was shocking, in the second place, because I was not aware that eleven-month-old Doodles could talk at all beyond the usual vocabulary of "Mamuh" and "Daddee" and certain other sounds about which my daughter lies shamelessly.

As Man To Man

While I was recovering slowly from my astonishment, Doodles rested one elbow on the edge of his high-chair, propped his chin in his hand and contemplated me earnestly with two clear, blue eyes.

Doodles said!

"Pull up your jaw, my man, and look intelligent if you can."

I can only explain this by saying that Doodles was born in Toronto.

Doodles continued;

"You're my grandfather, aren't you?"

Somewhat stiffly I replied;

"So I have been informed."

"In that case, I presume you have some influence over the young woman who calls herself my mother?"

"Young man," I said, "leave us be frank. No man has any influence over any woman. I give you that freely for what it is worth."

"Thank you," said Doodles gravely. "Have a bit of my spinach."

Common Ground

Doodles waved an airy hand over his plate of apricots, spinach and pablum.

"As man to man," he enquired, "what is your opinion of this stuff?"

I shuddered.

"Exactly," said Doodles. "It stinks. Now there is a chicken leg in the icebox. And if you would be good enough . . ."

I slipped out to the kitchen and came back with the cold chicken leg.

Doodles ripped away at it with his six teeth and then offered it for the action of my bridgework.

"The old lady is going to raise you-know-what," he said mildly. "But a fellow has to bust out once in a while. Perhaps you have discovered that?"

I maintained a discreet silence.

Matter Of Nomenclature

"There is another thing to which I invite your consideration," said Doodles, "this business of nicknames. What is your frank opinion of 'Doodles'?"

"Loathsome," I said.

"Exactly," returned Doodles. "It's malodorous. My name is Daniel Glenn which isn't very hot but infinitely preferable to 'Doodles.' And another thing," he went on, "do you know of any law compelling me to put on an aquatic show for the old folks every time I have a bath?"

I shook my head.

"It's getting pretty thick," he complained. "I have to squeal and swim and do tricks with a silly little yellow duck before I can have my bottle. Do you have any trouble with your bottle?"

"Frequently," I said.

"What do you think of all this?" asked Doodles.

"I think your life is grim, very grim," I said.

Then my grandson threw two dear plump arms about my neck and splashed a wet and precious kiss (with pablum) on my cheek.

Smiles

Sweet young thing (from the city)—Oh, what a strange looking cow! But why hasn't she any horns?

Farmer (explaining)—Well, you see, some cows are born without horns and never had any, and others shed theirs, and some we dehorn, and some breeds ain't supposed to have horns at all. There are a lot of reasons why some cows ain't got horns, but the reason why that cow ain't got horns is because she aint a cow—she's a horse.

Letters to the Editor

Police Training

Editor, Bulletin.—I have just finished your paper with the article and picture about the woman on the ice below the low level bridge. I was very much disgusted on reading that the police and firemen had tried for two hours to rescue the woman.

I would like to know if the police have ever heard of a rope ladder or a rope scaffold which most contractors use on the outsides of buildings.

We have just finished having our fire department pulled apart, why don't the officials take steps now to adjust the police force before things get out of hand?

It would be interesting to know how much training a new constable gets before he is put to duty. I am sure it would be money well spent to give each and every member of the force several months of good training under a competent instructor.

This letter is written in condemnation of the system used to educate our police force, not to criticize any person who took part in the attempt rescue because I am sure the fault for lack of equipment and men lies with the department heads and city council.

I would like to see your paper continue to press for more and better police protection. Let's not try to protect the bank after it has been robbed; do it before and then you're sure it is safe.

Sale of Liquor

Editor, Bulletin—This talk lately brought on by The Bulletin liquor article seems to be a bit of a joke as well as annoying to me.

They are too ignorant to see that the less drinking facilities you have, the more drinking and drunkenness there will be, and I believe that anyone who has been in the "wide open states" of the U.S. will agree with me that that's the way it is.

Anyway I can't see why the vendors can't operate 24 hours a day and that would completely stop all this bootlegging.

I don't think anyone would care to pay a ridiculous bootleg price if they could get it at a less ridiculous price at the vendor's.

I drive a taxi and I for one, and I know a few others who get good and tired of being asked and sometimes told by some moron to get him a bottle, and then being called every name under the sun when you refuse.

As long as there is no legal place to buy liquor after the vendors' close, I think you will be able to find some dope that will sell it and a bigger dope who will buy it illegally.

Meanwhile, I guess we will have to out up with that word "bootlegger" that pops into people's minds as soon as you mention that you dirve a taxi.

Juvenile Delinquency

Editor, Bulletin.—After reading Friday's Bulletin in which both you and Mr. Ross wrote on juvenile delinquency, I feel that someone should put you both on the right track. You have both wasted so much time and paper with opinions that are failing every day.

First of all I wish you would get a copy of "Father Flanagan of Boys Town" and read it, taking time to study it very carefully. That book alone should enlighten you on how juvenile delinquents are formed and how they can and have become good citizens.

Secondly: Go down to any news stand and purchase the latest copy of "Macleans Magazine." The article "Let's Stop the Whistling Torture" will convince anyone willing to think that corporal punishment, in all its forms, must be abolished immediately.

Thirdly, write to Macleans and ask them for the back issue in which there is an article dealing with capital punishment. It contains all the answers for anyone that advocates this barbaric practice.

While you are reading these articles keep in mind the number of great thinkers that haven't found these methods too fantastic. I am certain they would appreciate some support from the daily newspapers.

Sex And Criminals

Editor, Bulletin—On the question of sex criminals and the way to fight them, a volume could be written by a good psychiatrist, and I believe by the findings that we will have to dig deeper and deepr for the answers.

As long as we have the cultivated source to educate and breed "sex criminals," we are but locking up the results, but not the source of the crime. It is like closing the door after the horse is gone.

Remember that many of these crimes are frustrations sometimes dating back to childhood, also practices from childhood—sometimes practised by gangs, resulting in some becoming victims, others not, as the case may be.

The educators are usually natural "sex criminals"—the victims of the unnaturalness of their predicament—which finally drives them to desperation or despair.

The frustrated "sex criminal" is like a broncho who finds himself in a man-made corral and bites, kicks and bucks because he wants to break his way out to freedom and live a natural life again.

There is also a broncho called a killer who leaves a trail of broken bodies, on range or in a corral and can very seldom be trusted or tamed.

To a person who doesn't understand horses, the two corralled horses would appear the same, but to a horseman there is a vast difference and the frustrated horse with gentle handling and understanding, can be made a good, steady horse.

The killer is very rarely tamed unless he possesses special abilities of learning and then is usually a one-man horse.

We must have a rock foundation of general moral living and a vast, new understanding of life. We must shake off the old and put on the new and pray that God will give us wisdom and guidance in a new and better way of life and a new understanding of our fellow beings.

In other words, we must first house-clean and scrub before putting on the new polish in order to make a good finish.

Looking Backward

1889—60 Years Ago

Despite the mounted police patrol there is still considerable border raiding and horse stealing along the southern border of Manitoba.

E. Marston has been appointed agent of the North-West government to superintend the shipment of four per cent beer from Manitoba to the Territories.

Searle, the champion sculler of the world, died of typhoid fever in South Australia.

1899—50 Years Ago

The British people are beginning to get impatient about the course of the Boer war. Critics say the government is pursuing the war in a dilatory and half-hearted fashion, when the foe has always put forth his maximum strength. The government, in its defence in the House of Commons, says there is no basis in fact to sustain these criticisms. They say that the power of the Boers is underestimated by British public opinion and that British forces are making a resolute and successful attempt to curb the power of the Boers' resistance.

1909—40 Years Ago

Ottawa: Hon. W. S. Fielding presented his fourteenth budget, predicting a surplus of sixteen and a half million dollars.

Winnipeg: Mayor Sanford Evans was re-elected by a majority of 4,000, a tribute to his skillful and wise administration of civic affairs.

An extension of the street railway system to Allendale Park, Strathcona, is being urged.

1919—30 Years Ago

Berlin: Germany has yielded to the Allied demand for compensation for the sinking of the German ships at Scapa Flow.

Paris: As a result of meeting in London between Lloyd George and Clemenceau, the United States has been notified that Britain and France are prepared to consider modifications of the Treaty of Versailles if only the United States will enter the League of Nations.

1929—20 Years Ago

Thirty-two candidates were nominated for 14 vacancies on the city council, public and separate school boards. There are four candidates for the mayoralty: J. M. Douglas, James East, W. A. Gunn, Gerald Pelton. Sixteen are running for five vacant seats on council: J. W. Adair, Herbert Baker, Ralph Bellamy, J. A. Clarke, A. G. Gainer, J. Herlihy, D. K. Knott, Jan Lakeman, George Latham, H. J. Macdonald, C. G. O'Connor, H. J. Pallot, W. E. Rose, Rice Sheppard, E. J. Thompson, T. S. Thompson. There are eight candidates for four vacancies on the public school board: Sophie N. Bell, S. T. Bigelow, F. W. Crang, A. T. Cushing, John Johnson, Robert Muir, A. E. Ottewell, S. Bowcott. Four vacancies on the separate school board were filled by acclamation of C. E. Gariepy, B. J. Tansey, A. J. Ryan, T. S. Magee.

1939—10 Years Ago

Chicago: Francis L. Rigby, 21-year-old farmer from Wembley, Alta., was proclaimed wheat king at the 21st International Hay and Grain Show. Rigby also won the championship last year. William Skladen of Andrew won the oats championship.

Svanvik, Norway: Three thousand Soviet Russian soldiers were reported to have been landed on Petsamo Fjord, northernmost Finland, while immense clouds of smoke were sighted over the nickel works near Salmijaervi.

Moscow: Russian official press admitted that the Red army was meeting serious difficulty as a result of Finnish land mines, and declared that strict orders had been given Soviet aviators against bombardment of civilians. A Finnish legation spokesman said the number of civilian casualties in Helsinki and Viborg was between 200 and 250, including many women and children.

UGG Grain Selling Plan Claimed Best

It appears that the United Grain Growers' members have been the first to realize the dangers of the existing coarse grain policies which the farm groups have talked the governments into establishing.

The main objection to the coarse grain regulations is that this makes it compulsory to sell to the Canadian Wheat Board at whatever price the board cares to set. This means that if the board makes a mistake the farmers suffer the loss.

Before the legislation was passed, it was pointed out that this objection could easily have been removed. The farmers could still obtain the full advantage of a government board if, instead of making it compulsory, the board was simply established to set a fair price for coarse grain. It would then be left to each farmer to sell on the open market if he could get a better price, or to sell to the board if the open price fell below that offered by the board.

Such a plan would guarantee farmers an adequate income from coarse grain but, at the same time, it would permit them to secure higher prices if higher prices were available.

Farmers Had Nothing to Lose

Thus farmers had everything to gain and nothing to lose by such a plan.

While the Manitoba and Saskatchewan pools have been urging the Wheat Board to stop following the open market prices in setting its rates, the members of the United Grain Growers have now introduced a resolution asking that the farmers have a free choice between selling to the board and on the open market.

In urging that, the UGG is recognizing the disadvantages of compulsory marketing and is simply trying to secure a better siystem that will provide wider advantages together with the price security afforded by the board.

In this connection it is also interesting to note that the Americand farm organizations and main farm co-operative associations are protesting against the American government entering the field of farm marketing at all.

In a brief submitted to Washington it is stated that the Co-operatives demand that grain should be marketed through "the usual and customary channels of trade, thus avoiding needless and costly governmental action."

Aksel Nielsen, secretary-treasurer o fthe National Federation of Grain Co-operatives, offered the suggestion: "Because the government offers farmers a system of price supports, this did not mean the government needs to invade and occupy the field of grain marketing which should be left exclusively in the hands of individuals, partnerships, firms and farm co-operatives, and which through their active competition one with another, provide an efficient low-cost marketing service for producers and consumers."

U.S. Groups Have Self-Confidence

It would seem that the American farm organizations and co-operatives have confidence in their own ability to look after their own best interests. They resent giving up any of their rights to a government agency which would expose them to bureaucratic controls and all pressures to which every government is subject.

It would also seem that apart from the UGG that the Canadian co-operatives lack this confidence in their own ability to look after their members. Otherwise they would not want to surrender their marketing rights to a government agency as they have done.

But apart from this, it might be worth while for prairie farmers to think very seriously about what these other farm groups aer doing.

After all it does seem reasonable that a farmer is better off if he has a government price guarantee plus freedom to sell elsewhere if prices are better rather than to be compelled to sell to the government at that fixed price regardless of what others would pay him for his crop.

Toronto Is Losing Puritan Fixation

TORONTO.—There is a battle in the offing here which is destined to be a humdinger.

On January 2, Torontonians will decide whether or not they will permit commercialized sports to operate on Sunday afternoons.

To understand the significance of this, one has to remember the Toronto background. This place was the junction point for the old Scotch Presbyterian Grits and the Orange Tories, who were mostly of Ulster descent.

When I was born in this town on May 1, 1896, it celebrated its Sundays much as they then did in Scotland. It was almost a crime to whistle on the street. And if anyone had asked the citizens to vote in January, 1900, on whether commercialized sports were permitted he would probably have been run out of Toronto the Good.

Tradition Is Going

I reported in wartime that the old Puritanical tradition was visibly breaking down in Toronto. As a matter of fact, amateur sports are now played in Toronto on Sundays. But up till now no paid admissions have been permitted. The amateurs are allowed to take up collections. But the big-time sports, like baseball, are still out—for there can be no fixed admission charges.

There was a Gilbert and Sullivan touch of absurdity injected into the business because of the fact that the Toronto baseball and hockey teams actually do play Sunday—but they are compelled to do so now either in the Province of Quebec or across the international line in the States.

Now the question for decision by vote is:

Do you favor legalization of organized sports on Sunday afternoon?

Obviously public opinion has moved immensely in the past few decades. For debates are being held on the question on the premises of the churches themselves. That would have been unthinkable a few decades ago.

The real opposition to the proposed change comes from the folks who fear that the present proposal is merely the thin edge of the wedge. They argue that once Sunday afternoon ball games are legalized, movies and regular theatres will take up the cry for equal rights.

One Day Of Rest

I have no very strong ideas on this question myself, and certainly few fixed convictions on it. In all the years I worked on morning newspapers I had to do my stint on Sunday, too.

Since the radio came in, Sunday has become the most important day for people in that profession, or art.

But I do feel that everyone does deserve a full and complete rest for at least one day in the seven, and the wide open Sundays, such as they have in the U.S.A., does deprive many people of that privilege.

Take the movie people for instance. As things now are, they do get their day off. But would they get their day off if movie theatres were permitted to run the full seven days per week?

Like it or not, we will have to face this issue everywhere across Canada. And I for one know that the one thing I intend to work for is this:

That our one-day-in-seven rest shall be made even more binding in our laws than it has ever been—that it be extended, not restricted. There are many people, like housemaids and mothers' helpers and farmers' hired men, who do not even yet get their one day off, as the city workers mostly do.

But we should wipe out the fool features in our present laws which forbid the people to go to Sunday night movies, unless they stay up till one minute past midnight, thereby rendering ridiculous the principle of the day-of-rest law.

Trivia

The new silhouette for the 1949-50 autumn-winter season is radically different to that of a year ago in women's clothes. It is now slim, broad-shouldered and narrow-skirted with a small closely fitting hat from which springs up a feather—fluffy as often as not. Height—expressed through tall feather mounts, upstanding pulls of fabric or felt, or fronts of brims cut in a narrowing inverted "V"—is seen in all the hat collections, and, of necessity, the accompanying hairstyles are short and cap-like. But although hats fit snugly on the head there is plenty of variety, with different interpretations of the cap, cloche or calot types and, equally, many more trimmings than have been seen for years. Jet and steel beads edging brims, embroidery and pearl ornaments, are some of the elaborations which seem to belong to grandmother's bonnet, but which, in fact, supply charming touches to the more formal afternoon hats.

Churches

TODAY'S MESSAGE

Superstition

They won't light the third cigarette with one match. They believe a broken mirror means seven years' bad luck. Nothing would make them walk under a ladder. They belong to the millions everywhere who confess to one or more "pet" superstitions.

It doesn't do any good, apparently, to tell such people that their beliefs are silly. It would take a lot of arguing to convince them that there are no ocult forces ready to pounce upon them if they happen to do any of the hundred or more things that tradition says are dangerous.

Because they are a form of idolatry, superstitious beliefs or observances are expressly forbidden by the Christian commandments. People who consult the stars before they make a serious decision are actually refuting belief in a true God. When they cling to foolish notions about black cats, umbrellas, ladders or mirrors they implicity reject the reality of God's providence which watches unceasingly over them.

Men and women who cultivate God, who seek to know and practice the truths of religion, have no room in their lives for superstition. If they are faced with a serious crisis, they turn to God in prayer rather than to a crystal-gazing seer or a star-reader. Only the ignorant or morally deficient still believe that Friday is an unlucky day for starting new work or that some people possess "the evil eye."

The word superstition is derived from supersto, a Latin word which implies religious fear. Fear is the basis of most superstitious beliefs. In its most serious manifestations, superstition has led to acts of great cruelty against persons suspected of witchcraft or other supernatural powers.

Except in some primitive societies, superstition no longer finds outlet in the wanton and cruel excesses so prevalent in the Middle Ages. It remains, however, even in its mildest forms, a sin against the virtue of religion. It can be a grievous dishonor against God, depending upon its degree.

COME TO CHURCH THIS SUNDAY

Byzantine Monastery Discovered Near Cairo

CAIRO, Dec. 3.—A 64-room Coptic Christian monastery of the Byzantine period has been discovered at Helwan, 20 miles southeast of Cairo, by the Royal Excavation Society.

Fragments of glass and pottery as well as gold, silver and bronze coins found on the site show that the monastery was in use as early as the eighth century A.D.

Arab historians have mentioned that Abdul Aziz ibn Marwan, a Moslem leader in the first centry of the Arab conquest of Egypt, stayed at a monastery at Helwan during an illness.

On the north are the remains of small red brick canals, obviously used for irrigating a garden there. To the south is a cemetery containing 36 tombs of which 15 were intact. The bodies were wrapped in cloth, completely decayed and nothing was left of the coffins but pieces of rusted iron.

In the middle of the monastery was a large water reservoir and a swimming bath.

Drains fitted for disposing of waste water, indicate that the monks maintained a high standard of cleanliness. There were also vertical drainage pipes fitted into the walls for taking the water off the roof. In general, the impression is of great architectural skill employed in building.

Remains were also found of a group of mudbrick buildings, one of them a church.

Missionary At Norwood

First Sunday in December is set apart each year in Norwood United Church as missionary day. It provides an opportunity of thinking about the work of the church at home and overseas.

At tomorrow morning's service Dr. Clifford Grant, returned missionary from India, will speak of his and the church's work there.

Sunday school members and their parents are meeting in the church at 3 o'clock for a missionary rally, when Dr Grant will speak to the children. The pageant, "The Romance of the Duplex Envelope" also will be presented.

Pageant was written by Dr. J. T. Stephens and will be directed by Mrs. Archie Campbell with almost all groups in the church taking part. Colorful costumes will depict different parts of the world where the [illegible] has m[illegible] sts.

Music will be the teen-age choir led by Mrs. A. Wortherspoon with Mr. Bonner at the organ. [illegible] and program will be repeated at 7:30 for the evening congregation.

Tibetan Holy Book Goes to Stanford

PALO ALTO, Cal. — (UP) — A rare copy of the Tibetan Tripitaka, sacred canon of Buddhism, has been given to the Stanford University by a Buddhist monk in Japan.

The edition is believed to be the only one of its kind in the western world. Its 300-odd volumes will yield many secrets, locked in lost Sanskrit manuscripts for centuries, when scholars begin the task of translating the work, university officials said.

They pointed out that the Tripitaka is as important to Buddhists and scholars of the Oriental world as an untranslated Greek or Latin document about the teachings of Christ would be to the western world.

University officials said they hoped the Tripitaka would attract Buddhist scholars from all corners of the globe for research into Buddhist thought and Tibetan literature.

Quest for Talkative Fish

Greater Use of Press Urged For Churches

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 3.—The Christian Church must assume the responsibility of better interpreting its role to newspapers, Dr. Ralph Stoody of New York told the Methodist Conference on Christian education here.

Director of public information for the denomination, Dr. Stoody said the nation's daily and weekly papers are the church's "most valuable allies" in making known its message.

He said newspapermen, with some notable exceptions, have a totally inadequate understanding of the program of the modern church, although observing that newspapers render "imense service" to the church.

"But the responsibility lies with church leaders more than with newspapermen," he said. "Newspapermen have a thousand interests, each one of paramount concern to a portion of their public.

"To the churchman, the church and its allied organizations are of supreme importance and it should be his responsibility to interpret the church to the wielders of the opinion-making media in his community."

FULTON OURSLER'S Modern Parables

FAITH IN OUR FRIENDS

Dear Friends and Gentle Hearts:

One spring midnight, not many years ago, I got into an argument with a friend of mine. He was a famous man and occupied a position of responsibility and power. Over sandwiches and milk, as we sat late at his desk, I ventured to criticize him for what I presumed to call his naive trust in human nature.

"Time and again your friends have sold you down the river," I remonstrated. "You ought to be more suspicious of people."

He smiled, spread wide his hands as if asking forgiveness, and declared:

"I just can't do it; I have to believe in people! While some friends will betray you, sooner or later, the percentage is all on the side of loyalty. After all, the Master had twelve friends and one was Judas. I believe the modern political average of loyalty is higher than one in twelve. I think it was one extraordinary thing which, happening to me in my college days, fixed in me the habit of persistent faith in my fellow man the rest of my life."

He then told me this story:

My friend—whom I shall call Frank—entered an eastern university before the turn of the century. His roommate turned out to be a moody youth named Paul, son of a stern father with whom he was on hostile terms. It seems that the old gentleman, a manufacturer of bustles and girdles in Baltimore, had started with nothing and made himself a fortune. Never having been to college, he scorned the higher education. Only his wife's social ambitions had induced him to send Paul to the university.

Even in those days, a dollar a week spending money wasn't much for a college boy and that was all the income Paul was allowed; it was not strange that he ran into debt. One day, he revealed to Frank that, in small bills here and there, he owed over a hundred dollars; would Frank lend him that much money? Frank did, at some inconvenience to himself and by mid-winter Paul paid it all back. When the freshman year ended, the roommates parted, still good friends; but in September, when Paul did not return to college and no one heard from him, tongues began to wag.

Fulton Oursler

Gradually the sophomores, exchanging experiences, and totalling up their loans to the absent Paul, found that he had disappeared leaving debts behind him to the sum of twelve hundred dollars. Amidst general indignation, it was decided to write Paul's father and demand the money. Then Frank spoke up:

"If you do that," he argued, "you know what will happen: the old man will throw Paul out forever; he is just that kind of curmudgeon. Let's wait and give Paul a chance. I still believe he is an honest man and I still believe you will get your money back—just as I did."

Such was his eloquence—one of the most persuasive men who ever lived—that he carried the day.

The years passed; the boys were graduated and still no one heard from Paul. In all, fifteen years went by, until the night came when Frank found himself sitting on a dais, toastmaster at a class club reunion dinner. He had introduced the first speaker and settled himself back to listen, when an unseen hand tapped him on the shoulder. Turning quickly, he found himself face to face with a stranger; a short man with mustache and beard and double-lens spectacles.

"Don't you know me, Frank? I am Paul! Don't be worried; I will not make any trouble. I am entirely sober. But I want you to do me a favor: I want to make a speech. Will you introduce me when your speaker finishes? I will take only five minutes—cross my heart and hope to die."

Now Frank was the kind of man who loved a drama, especially off the stage. Not for worlds would he have refused, even though he had not the slightest idea what Paul was going to say. When the opportunity came, he announced:

"Our next speaker is an extra added attraction. He is an old friend from our freshman days. None of us can possibly have forgotten him. We have often talked about him; now after many years he is here to speak for himself." And, pronouncing his name, he led the unbidden guest to the lectern.

Smiling at his former classmates, Paul began:

"Gentlemen, I realize that we are not all here. Some of us have died. Some of us just could not get here. I am sure you will agree, however, that to those present and to those absent, I mean but one thing—I am merely the man who ran away leaving a lot of debts behind him. Tonight I came here to tell you why I acted that way. When I borrowed the money, I believed that I saw a way to repay it; but I was disappointed. By the middle of summer I knew that I couldn't make good. Coward that I was, I didn't dare go to my father. All I could think of was escape. So I shipped on a tramp freighter and sailed half-way round the world. But in Canton I lost my job and so I found myself stranded.

"It may sound like a tall story to you, gentlemen, but it is nevertheless, true, that before I got out of China, I was captured by river bandits on the Yangtze. They took everything I had, down to my breeches. The only thing they left me was a piece of paper which had no value to them but which meant everything to me. I held on to that paper through many adventures. Eventually I reached Switzerland.

"In the University of Lausanne, I finished my formal education, earning my way by becoming an instrucdtor in English. Later, I became an assistant professor. Now I am a full professor. I married a Swiss teacher and we have four children.

"You realize, gentlemen, that no college professor is paid a large salary anywhere in the world, but Europe pays even less than here. Nevertheless, in all these years, and in spite of my growing family, I have saved a little something out of every week's pay—a little today, sometimes a little more tomorrow—always in my soul waiting for this occasion—for this night of nights that I have dreamed of all these years—and here it is, at last.

"The money to pay you back is in my pocket! And in my hand, where you can all see it is that piece of paper. It bears the names of the students and the amounts they loaned me, the list of my debts and my debtors, which now I am ready to pay back, and for which I thank God."

In the deep hush, Frank rose and stood beside Paul, put his arms around him and began the singing in which soon all were joining—"For he is a jolly good fellow."

"You see," my friend told me, "that I figure it is worth-while being done in the eye now and then, because, more often than not, you find your trust in human nature pays off."

Where did I hear this story? In that upper room in the White House that is called the President's oval study. And who was the friend who told it to me? Franklin D. Roosevelt!

Sunday School Goes On the Air

Beginning tomorrow, the Teen-Age Department of Metropolitan Sunday School, (Edmonton) will have a 15 minute broadcast over CKUA. The broadcast will originate in the assembly hall of Metropolitan Church, where the Teen-Age department meets.

The program is arranged in co-operation with a special broadcasting committee and the individual groups in the department. Kim Ross is superintendent of the department and chairman of the committee. Assistance will be given by the junior choir, which is under the direction of Wyman Kerr.

The program will be held from 10.15 to 10.30 a.m. and, following introductory sessions, will deal with:

The Teen-Ager and the Church; the Teen-Ager and the Bible; the Bible as a basis for conduct; how the Teen-Ager expresses Christianity in his conduct; the Teen-Ager and Christian beliefs.

Fundamental Baptist Church

Discovery that the "silent deep" is not silent after all forms the basis for a scientific color film, "Voice of the Deep," to be shown in the Fundamental Baptist Church, Sunday 3:00 p.m.

Contrary to the age-old belief that there is no sound under the sea, "Voice of the Deep" reveals that fish have a definite language of their own. Their aquatic conversations in the film resemble the peculiar quacks, grunts, whistles, and clucks of a barnyard.

A congregation of snapping shrimp sounds like a crackling forest fire, while a school of Chesapeake Bay croakers was once mistaken for an invasion of enemy ships.

This is the first time that fish sounds have ever been recorded in a film, according to Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, producers of "Voice of the Deep." A special Moody representative will show the film here, D. Fraser McRae.

To achieve the unusual scene in "Voice of the Deep," a scientific expedition was sent out from Los Angeles to the coast of southern California. Delicate sounding devices were used to determine where to tune in the hydrophone, or underwater microphone, to find the most noisy fish. Then a diver was lowered into the sea with a specially outfitted camera.

A Welcome For All!

Methodists Sponsor Evangelism Campaign

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3.—One thousand Methodist clergymen from 48 states attended the opening here of one of the greatest Protestant mass evangelism programs ever undertaken in Philadelphia. The campaign is part of Methodism's four year "Advance for Christ and His Church" designed to combat secularism and indifference.

The ministers heard Bishop Fred P. Corson, head of the Philadelphia Area, who challenged them with the statement that nearly 2,000,000 people in the greater city area do not go to church.

"Many of these unchurched are respectable, intelligent people, your neighbors and mine," Bishop Corson said, "but in religion they are illiterate."

Pointing out that the clergymen would conduct general schools of evangelism and then fan out into two-man teams to work in each of the 330 Methodist churches in the area, Bishop Corson said:

"You will find as you meet the unchurched some who are unconcerned, who think they can live without God, because they have paused to consider the origin or purpose of life.

"You'll find others who are drifting and unattached simply because no one has ever talked to them about God, or invited them to church.

"You will meet still others who will be longing desperately for the sure word of authority and the truth as revealed in the Word of Life. Speak as persuasively as you can. Don't give them merely the stones of your own ideas, that which fills up so much of our popular discussions and everyday talk, but try to offer the bread of spiritual nourishment."

The campaign here will last through Dec. 6 and will seek to train upwards of 6,000 church people in evangelism and home visitation and to obtain 10,000 new members in nine days.

NEW HOME for Edmonton's blind. This attractive Jasper avenue building will be opened this weekend.

ATTRACTIVE furnishings caught fancy of Jack Weber, CNIB Northern Alberta chairman, and W. J. Jones, 7412-105A street, during inspection of new home for blind.

Blind 'Inspect' Their New Home

Designers Incorporated All Aids to Sightless

The "smartest club in town" opened its doors last night for Edmonton's blind.

Officially, the new $175,000 centre built by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind opens this afternoon but, as far as the blind are concerned, it is now open.

Last night over a hundred sightless persons felt their way over every inch of the building and marvelled at its spaciousness and beauty.

"I guess it makes a good hotel look pretty shabby," one elderly blind man was heard to remark as he seated himself in one of the deeply upholstered easy chairs in the lounge.

The new headquarters, Jasper at 121 street, will accommodate 27 blind men and women and will serve as a social and recreation centre for all blind persons in the city.

It also provides workrooms where the blind will make baskets, doormats and other blindcraft products.

PRIORITY BASIS

The 27 persons who will live in the bright, cheerful atmosphere of the centre have been chosen on a priority basis from those in the city who have inadequate accommodation and care at present.

They will live in comfortably furnished single and double rooms.

Designed by city architect Neil C. McKernan, the building has been carefully planned.

All corners are rounded to prevent injury to blind persons who might strike them. Swinging gates are at the top of all stairs as a warning Large brass numbers are fixed to all bedroom doors a few inches above the handle permitting the occupant to feel the number as he reaches for the door handle. All doors close automatically.

Chiefly responsible for the new centre is city insurance and real estateman J. A. Weber, chairman of the northern Alberta board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. As chairman of the site finding and building committees, he has worked on the project since 1946.

Responsible for the "every-woman's-dream" furnishings are Mrs. R. B Clifton and Mrs. John Sydie who have worked for a year on the task.

The centre is one of several being built across the country by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Others have recently been opened at Calgary and a fourth is under construction at Vancouver.

CNIB officials state they are unexcelled anywhere in the world.

Blind Find Pleasure In Oil Paintings

The blind are extremely color conscious and appreciative of paintings and interior decorations, according to Mrs. Helen Major, Vancouver, who was in charge of completion of the new $175,000 centre for the blind.

"Now take these paintings," she said, referring to five oil paintings by Ella May Walker, noted Edmonton artist.

"It is a strange thing but these paintings will give a great deal of pleasure to people who will never see them.

"In the same way they will sense the bright cheerful atmosphere. We have gone to great trouble to keep this building from seeming institution-like. It looks like a small modern hotel or perhaps a country club."

Pan-American Roads

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony.—(CP)—A network of all-weather roads to cover the African continent within the next 10 years was recommended by the International Congress of African Touring, which met here. Some of the countries represented said they plan to start building some of the roads suggested.

SHEPPEY, Kent, England.—(CP)—Thieves stripped £270 ($837) worth of lead from the roof of historic Shurland Hall here.

Civil Service Asks Five-Day Week

WINNIPEG, Dec. 3—(CP)—Manitoba's civil servants decided yesterday to ask for extension of overtime pay to all departments of the provincial government and approved in principle a five-day week.

Resolutions urging these changes were among those endorsed at the annual convention of the Manitoba Civil Servants' Association.

Ayrshire Directors

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Election of three prominent breeders of Ayrshire cattle to the board of directors of the Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, was announced today.

Elected for a two-year term were Oliver N. Wells of Sardis, B.C.; Herbert A. Ness of DeWinton, Alta., and J. D. Roberts of Morse, Sask., representing Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Vancouver Tops List For Blind Folk

VANCOUVER, Dec. 3—(BUP)—Vancouver has the largest population of blind persons in Canada because of its mild weather according to C. A. Pettipiece, Calgary, national president of the Canadian Federation for the Blind.

Appreciation and Invitation!

The Northern Alberta Board of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, acknowledges with gratitude the assistance of individuals, organizations and business firms in Northern Alberta, whose donations have helped to make the erection and furnishing of its new building possible.

It cordially invites the public to inspect the building from 3 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, December 4th.

Dinner at Antoine's

By Frances Parkinson Keyes

Synopsis: Capt. Murphy believes Odile St. Amant was murdered. The suspects: Her unfaithful husband Leonce who has been squiring her sister Caresse; her beautiful mother Amelie Lolande who refused Orson Foxworth's marriage proposal because of Odile's illness, her physician Vance Perrault and her old admirer Sabin Duplessis, prefer the suicide theory. Odile's old Negro maid, Tossie Pride, has been arrested for the murder. Joe Racina, the journalist, believes this arrest is just a hoax. Caresse wants to go to New York to launch her new career. The investigation keeps her in New Orleans. Sabin Duplessis unwittingly admits he was at the scene of the crime. Now go on with the story—

CHAPTER ELEVEN

"If it were only a question of Sabin, and did-he-or-didn't-he, this conversation would be brief and simple," Joe said, without preamble. But he fell silent again and some moments passed before he added, "I suppose the first thing to do is decide whether Odile's death was a murder or a suicide. And the hell of it is, they're both equally plausible. You can rationalize one as readily as the other."

"How?" Judith asked as they sat together before a cosy fire in the grate.

"Well let's take suicide first. That girl didn't have just one good reason for it; she had half a dozen. Four, anyway. First, her realization that she'd be a hopeless invalid the rest of her days. Second, Leonce was two-timing Odile and their marriage had become a rather sorry mess. As to the third, I got the idea from some of Sabin's ravings tonight that maybe he and Odile suddenly began to realize, sometime in the course of the past few days, how much they still loved one another. Conceivably that might have been what brought on Odile's hysteria. They certainly had some kind of a definite understanding once even if they weren't formally engaged. Then came the war and of course Sabin volunteered right off. Finally came the news that his plane had gone down somewhere between Calcutta and Kunming."

DARK MAGNETISM

"And about this time, I suppose, Leonce St. Amant came along?"

"Right. Leonce, and what you call his dark magnetism, whatever that might be. Anyway, the girls went for him, and Odile was no exception."

"But somewhere along the line Sabin turned up again," Judith interposed.

"Then she found out that marrying Leonce had really been a ghastly mistake, not because of the way he acted, but because of the way she felt. Suppose she looked ahead and saw herself tied for life—a long life of invalidism—to one man, and hopelessly in love with another. Maybe that's what she couldn't take any longer . . . Anyway, what it all adds up to is that if self-destruction is ever a reasonable act, Odile St. Amant had reasonable grounds and to spare for taking her own life. That makes it believable she did so."

"Unless it's even more believable that someone had a reason for wanting her out of the way"

"Who, for instance?" Joe asked.

"Her mother . . you know her name has been linked with Foxworth's for years and years, and there've been no end of theories as to why they didn't marry. But the day after Odile's death," Judith continued, "Foxworth tells Ruth he and Amelie are to be married, which means they had been planning it before. Now tell me this: is it too unthinkable that Amelie had finally decided to count New Orleans well lost for love amid the breadfruit—and that then along came Perrault's verdict about Odile's condition? Wouldn't that mean the marriage would have to be indefinitely postponed, especially in view of Amelie's devoted-mother routine?"

AN ADMISSION

"You know, you could have something there," Joe admitted. "Only if you follow that line of reasoning, you've got to include Foxworth. He couldn't abdicate from the empire he's built up in Central America. As long as he heads the Great Blue Fleet, his base of operations must be Puerto de Oro. He and Amelie couldn't take a hopeless paralytic into their tropic Paradise. Odile needed the care that couldn't be provided for her there. You know, you're pretty good at this, Jude. Any more suspicions, Miss Pinkerton?"

"No. I'll leave the rest to you."

"All right. Let's get on to the others. Leonce not only had the opportunity and the motive, but he's stupid."

"If stupidity is so significant, wouldn't that clear Orson Foxworth? He isn't stupid, whatever else might be said of him."

"Agreed. Only ruthless. And he is the only one of those under discussion who prepared a careful and completely false alibi to conceal his whereabouts and his movements on the night Odile was killed."

"Why, you might say the same about Sabin. He needn't really have been blind drunk. The liquor on his breath and the way he acted would have been enough to back up his claim that he didn't remember anything. He could have been preparing an alibi."

"And that's another shrewd observation, m'love. In addition, Sabin was on the scene and he concealed the fact from everyone but us, to whom he admitted it without realizing what he was saying. A bullet from the gun he gave Odile earlier in the day took her life. He's maladjusted in any case and frustrated in his love for Odile. He has a violent and ungovernable temper. . . . And yet somehow it doesn't ring any bells. Sabin was the only one in the crowd who stood to gain nothing by Odile's death except the satisfaction of having removed her from another man's embraces."

MOTIVE MISSING

"There's still another person you haven't mentioned."

Blankly Joe looked at his wife. Then his countenance cleared. "Vance Perrault? Yes, he had the opportunity. But when it comes to motive, we're stymied in his case. He had nothing to gain by her death. As for killing her because it would really be doing her a kindness—Perrault is the one man who wouldn't give in to any such temptation. Medical ethics are almost a phobia with him."

"But I wasn't even thinking about Doctor Perrault, dear. It was Tossie I had in mind. She's actually charged with the murder."

"Oh—Tossie! I thought we'd written her off. Odile's illness would only mean to TossieK that 'mah baby' would need her faithful old mammy more than ever. Which is what Tossie lived for. And it still stands that she couldn't have written that note. . . . Wait a minute! That note! Angels and ministers of grace! What a dope I've been. Why it's like a neon sign in an otherwise dark street. That note—don't you see? It wasn't necessarily a suicide note at all!

"Let's say Odile and Sabin make the mutual discovery they're still in love," Joe continued. "But the doctor's just told her she hasn't much time left. So if she's to get any joy out of life before she becomes entirely helpless, she's got to make some kind of a quick decision. She'll have those few precious weeks or months of wonderful rapture to take with her into the dark future Doctor Perrault has shown her, and she'll do it honestly; namely, she'll become a fallen woman, an erring wife or what have you. Sabin is to come to the little garden at ten o'clock or thereabouts and they'll leave for no matter where."

CHECKS WITH FACTS

"Joe, you're letting your imagination run away with you."

"Could be. But at least it checks with the facts as we know them . . There were two unpredictable circumstances—Odile's own emotional condition, which made it impossible for her to stay on an even keel; and Doctor Perrault's return some two hours before he was expected for a second visit. So let's reconstruct the scene—and again I'm only guessing—something like this: the elopement is planned; Sabin will come by at whatever the hour is—say it's ten-thirty; Odile will meet him and they'll go to Honeymoon Haven. But the surrender to authentic passion upsets Odile's tremulous nervous adjustment. She goes into that emotional nose dive. The doctor comes, decides she must be quieted, finally gives her a hypodermic, and says he'll look in again about midnight. But the effect of the hypo is brief. In the light of her generally overexcited and overwrought condition it might well be. She comes out of the fog and finds the situation almost made to order. Everybody's been sent away by the doctor, Sabin can help her pack when he comes. So she writes her note. Not a suicide note, a note to her mother telling why she's running off with another man. And then comes the second unpredictable," Joe continued. "Doctor Perrault arrives about ten, finds Odile up and about and this second frustration sends her into another and even more devastating spin. So he administers a second hypodermic, and this time he makes it a good one; she's back in a drugged sleep that he knows will keep her unconscious until morning. And that means, obviously, that when Sabin does arrive to fly away with her on wings of rapture, his signal is unanswered. Maybe he does see the shadow struggle or embrace that he told us about, or maybe he only imagined in his drunken state that he did see it . . ."

"But he wouldn't have prepared for an elopment by getting drunk."

"You've got a point there, no doubt. But perhaps he thought from her earlier spell that the elopment was off anyway, and was out to drown his frustration. And in this drunken state he foggily remembers he has a date to be in that garden at ten-thirty, and that's why, drunk or not, he does show up. At least it's a possibility. But I don't doubt there could be half a dozen believable explanations for it. That's not what's troubling me. The thing I keep coming back to, now that I'm on this track, is the note. The note's gone. Vanished. As long as it was only a suicide note, its disappearance wasn't a matter of great moment. But if it wasn't a suicide note—if it was what I think it was—whoever's now got that note killed Odile."

Fantastic Tale Ends With Divorce, Arrest of Beggar

By Sam Souki

CAIRO, Dec. 3.—(UP)—The Bey kept her in furs, Persian carpets, and rare curios, but she divorced him because he was a beggar.

This is the amazing story of a Prince Charming who posed as a pauper, filled his coffers with the alms he received every day in the streets of Cairo. He lived in great luxury, but spent his days whining about his misery.

The Cairo police unfolded the strange tale of the beggar Bey.

It all started some six months ago when a handsome young man entered the home of a well-to-do widow and asked her for the hand of her beautiful young daughter. His clothes, appearance, language and manners spoke of his high birth and comfortable living. The delighted woman immediately accepted.

EYES ARCHED

The wedding was one of the most elaborate to be seen. This Prince Charming who had appeared from the skies spent lavishly that day.

The numerous guests were amaxed at the food, the music and the dancers he brought for the occasion. The royal feast went on until the early hours of the morning and the blushing bride was the envy of all her neighbors.

Our hero carried his bride over the threshhold of a richly funished house, and the girl pinched herself to make sure she was not dreaming.

Persian carpets covered the floors, rare curios rested on shelves, paintings by old masters hung on tapestried walls and in the corner stood a piano.

LIVED HAPPILY

For six happy months the bride lived in real splendor. Her wishes were his commands, her requests his pleasure to perform. Hardly a day passed without his getting her some new gift.

And he was no playboy either. Each day he would leave the house early in the morning and return, exhausted, late at night. The business of supervising lands and buildings is tiring him out, she thought.

Until one day he left the house and failed to return. She fretted and worried, until one week later the police summoned her.

"Your husband has been arrested," they informed her. Why? Had he committed a crime engaged in politics? "No," replied the sergeant. "He was a beggar".

But he had been a clever beggar. One day he posed as a Palestinian refugee, the next day as a jobless student thrown out because of his political convictions.

People pitied him and gave him money.

He brought four buildings in Cairo, a farm and kept his wife happy.

Plane Shatters Sonic 'Barrier'

MUROC AIR BASE, Calif., Dec. 3.—(AP)—Skimming like a hummingbird only 30 feet off the ground, a navy Douglas Skyrocket has pierced the sonic barrier in a dazzling speed test.

While navy officials were silent, competent observers put the speed of the D-558-2 at between 760 and 800 miles an hour. The official world record is 670 miles an hour by an F-86 jet fighter.

Canada's Capital Surges to Fore

Ottawa Fast Overtaking Hamilton as 5th City

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Canada's capital, gobbling-up surrounding townships in an effort to relieve its cramped acres, is threatening Hamilton's claim to the title of Canada's fifth-largest city.

With the formal annexation New Year's Day of 21,000 acres from Nepean and Gloucester townships, Ottawa's population will be given a 25,000-citizen boost to the 186,000 mark—pushing close to Hamilton's 192,125.

The annexations, approved by the Ontario Municipal Board, will more than triple Ottawa's present 6,009 acres, now bursting-at-the-seams because of heavy wartime and post-war development.

NINTH TIME

Adjoining Nepean and Gloucester townships nine times before have lost slices of territory to the city selected by Queen Victoria in 1857 as the site for the Dominion's capital.

As well as serving to relieve congestion in the city, the annexations are part of a long-range program to beautify the nation's capital that is being undertaken jointly by the city and the federal government.

Under the beautification program, railway lines will be moved from the centre of the city and start already has been made on clearing industrial plants from the banks of the Ottawa River in the vicinity of the parliament buildings.

NOT IN DANGER

Unless Ottawa should suddenly launch another annexation program, Winnipeg with a population of 222,000 appears little in danger of losing its ranking as the dominion's fourth-largest city.

But Hamilton will have to do some fast annexing on its own to hold its present fifth-place position.

Up to 60,000 workers in Switzerland are normally employed in the watchmaking trade—one out of every 35 persons engaged in the nation's industries.

Amendments OKd To Veterans' Act

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The Commons approved yesterday a government bill which Veterans Minister Gregg said will allow "greater flexibility" in administration of the Veterans Land Act.

One change would allow the administration to sell a veteran's land in one locality and to settle him in another if he was transferred there for business reasons. Another would allow the administration to sell one part of a property and buy up more desirable adjoining property.

Again, the settled veteran would be allowed to sell trees, sand, gravel or other things and re-invest the sale money in improvements.

Kiddies Eyesight Salvaged In Ramshackle Old Hospital

By A. E. FULFORD

TORONTO, Dec. 3—(CP)—Shy, humiliated children with crossed eyes change almost overnight into happy, normal youngsters under the skilful hands of surgeons at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

The operation is a delicate one but safe and sure. Surgeons, who straighten the eyes of 200 children from many parts of Canada each year, say there is no reason why any child should go through life with the handicap.

The surgical teams scrub up at sinks in a crowded hallway of the 74-year-old "Sick Kids" building. Facilities in a new hospital—to be opened next July if $4,000,000 is raised in a current building-fund drive—may enable them to operate quickly on a waiting list of 90 children who now have to wait months for surgery.

The psychological change the operation brings is even more striking than the straightened eyes.

Shamed kids whose lives were made unhappy by the jeers of playmates become confident, cheerful children.

People no longer glance away from them.

Potential juvenile delinquents undergo amazing character changes.

Surgeons straighten the eyes by moving muscles attached to the side of the eyeballs.

The eyeball is not taken from the socket. That's impossible, despite popular belief. It is turned to one side and held by instruments.

Usually muscles on both sides of the eye have to be moved, one tightened and one loosened.

This is where the skill of the surgeon is tested.

NEW MUSCLE

He must sew a muscle about the size and thickness of a piece of baby ribbon to the pasteboard-thin outer covering of the eye. And he must do it without sewing through the eyeball covering.

The operation takes only 45 minutes and the children go home in a day or two. Ninety per cent of first operations are successful. The rest need a second operation.

Later the child is given a series of exercises to bring the turned eye, usually weak through disuse, to equal strength with the normal eye.

3 IN DIVORCE CASE ARE ALL IN PRISON

TORONTO, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Mr. Justice J. K. Mackay decided yesterday he was hearing "an extraordinary" divorce action.

Both the plaintiff and the correspondent are in prison. The defendant, who is not contesting the case, was only recently released from prison and is again in custody.

The woman seeking the divorce is in Kingston penitentiary, due to be released in 1950. The co-respondent is also in Kingston. The defendant was released from there in 1947 but has since been confined at Okalla prison farm in British Columbia.

Inside Hollywood

By Bob Thomas

HOLLYWOOD.—(AP)—Walter Huston of Toronto is one veteran actor with no plans to pen his memoirs.

Huston, who is now working on "The Furies," was informed that both Ethel and Lionel Barrymore are writing their life stories. I asked him if he had any ideas about writing his.

"No," he laughed, "I tried it once. I sat down with a fellow and he wrote up a couple of pages. When I read them to the family, they said, 'no, it doesn't sound like you.' So I retired for a couple of days and rewrote the two pages.

"I read them to the family and they said, 'good—that sounds like you.' Right then I knew if it took me two days of hard labor to write so little, it would be too darn much work to write a book. So I gave it up."

If the Huston story goes unwritten, it would be a grave loss to the history of show business. He has known every field and every star of the entertainment world since he began acting in 1902.

Wheat Deliveries By Farmers Urged

By Harold Morrison

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Trade Minister Howe said yesterday he will ask western farmers to speed deliveries of wheat so the government can close the books on the five-year prairie wheat pool.

This touched off speculation as for the future of Canadian wheat-marketing methods.

The pool does not end until next July 31.

Mr. Howe said he would like to see the work completed as soon as possible. Then extra payments could be made to farmers participating in profits of the Canadian wheat board.

"The sooner western farmers deliver their current crop to the board the sooner payments will be made," said Mr. Howe.

The government shortly will embark on an advertising campaign to get farmers to step up deliveries of wheat to the pool elevators.

There was "grave danger" of Canada selling more wheat to foreign customers than she had available for delivery.

Canada, he said, had made commitments to sell "well over" 200,000,000 bushels of wheat in the crop year which ends next July 31. A total of 203,000,000 was earmarked under the international wheat agreement and undisclosed amounts would go to such countries as Iraq, Iran, Israel and Japan.

In addition, there was a large domestic demand for wheat and flour and provision had to be made for a carry-over of about 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels to protect Canada against the possibilities of a bad crop year.

The current crop year, described by Mr. Howe as a "short" year, produced 367,400,000 bushels of wheat, a drop of 20,000,000 from last year's output. However, the carry-over of 98,700,000 bushels was 11,000,000 bushels greater than last year's 77,700,000.

Thus, total supply was estimated at 466,100,000 bushels, compared with 471,300,000 last year.

Canada requires 147,000,000 bushels—6,000,000 more than last year. This leaves 319,100,000 bushels for carry-over and export. Last year Canada had 330,300,000 for export and carryover.

"And we sold everything we got last year," Mr. Howe said.

Mr. Howe declined to give an opinion as to what would happen to Canadian wheat and coarse-grain marketings once the pool ended, or whether the government would initiate a new long-term pool.

"The government has not yet formulated policy," Mr. Howe said.

Return of Hankie Spells 'No' to Girl

By Mary Turnbull

To the average Canadian, life in a Hutterite colony appears a drab, heavily restricted existence.

Not that we know much about these serious-minded neighbors of ours.

Occasionally we see them shopping in town, the men bearded, the women in long, black skirts and sun bonnets.

We know that they live in co-operative communities that they're opposed to war, that their religion forms the basis of their ascetic way of life.

But that's about the extent of our knowledge.

According to our values, their existence is drab and restricted. It lacks entirely the thing the French term "joie de vivre."

But it does have some remarkably interesting and colorful aspects.

In a Hutterite community, for instance, the prerogative of proposing marriage belongs not to the men but to the girls.

The Hutterite lassies don't do anything so blunt as putting it in so many words. Instead, they fall back on a rather charming custom.

When a girl becomes eighteen, she begins working on a handkerchief, which she embroiders beautifully and artistically with decorations and words.

Simple Procedure

When she thinks she's found her man, she presents him with the handkerchief. And on it the proposal is embroidered.

The rest is very simple.

If the man decides to accept, he keeps the handkerchief. If not, he returns it.

We assume that in the latter case, the girl accepts his decision with maidenly dignity and lets the matter drop.

She gives her handkerchief to someone else.

In various other ways, the life of a Hutterite girl is simple and uncomplicated.

There's none of this business of waiting for the telephone to ring on a Saturday night.

That, however, is because there are no such things as dates or movies or dances.

There aren't any pretty clothes or pianos or radios.

At the age of eighteen, the Hutterite girl will probably marry and spend her life raising a large family.

Little Opportunity

To us her existence seems not only unexciting but barren of opportunity for her to develop her intelligence or personality.

But a Hutterite could present some good arguments in favor of this system.

He'd say that a Hutterite girl has true peace of mind because she lives in a peaceful, religious, co-operative community. She has security from birth to death. And she fulfils the normal functions for which women were created—in the home and in the church.

All else, he would say, is vanity and vexation of spirit . . .

Obviously, it's a matter of two different standards of value.

10 Seeking Civic Office In Red Deer

RED DEER, Dec. 3.—More than 250 persons were on hand for the annual ratepayers' meeting in the city hall last night and a fair representation took part in discussion of the city's affairs. In addition 10 candidates for civic offices outlined their platforms in the election to be held December 12. Nominations close at noon Monday, December 5.

Alderman J. V. Bettenson was the only mayoralty candidate to address the meeting. Former Alderman L. W. Askin, who is also in the running, was out of town on business. Dr. C. R. Bunn retires as mayor after two years in office.

Seven candidates announced their intention to stand for election to the four aldermanic seats vacant. Standing for re-election is Dr. W. B. Parsons. Alderman Bettenson has withdrawn from seeking return to council in favor of running for mayor.

Alderman Paul Crawford has decided against standing for another term and Alderman H. W. Halliday is resigning after completing the first year of his two-year term. Aldermen E. B. Farnell and Walter Code are completing the second year of their two-year term in 1950 so do not stand for re-election this year.

SEVEN ALDERMANICS

Seeking election as aldermen, in addition to Dr. Parsons, are R. J. Smith, J. M. McAffee, Jack Laidler, F. T. Jenner, Charles Anderson, and Alec Sim.

Two of the retiring members of the Public School Board addressed the meeting, George England and Ron Holmes. The third retiring member is Mrs. James Smith, and all three will seek re-election. Separate school trustees R. L. Hepworth and R. M. Pollock have also announced they will seek re-election, but neither appeared at the meeting.

L. H. Taylor, chairman of the hospital board will run again this year.

Of 4,705 miles of Netherlands waterways only about 700 miles are natural waters, the remaining 4,000 miles are man-made.

Board Offers Co-operation In Establishing of Depot

MORINVILLE, Dec. 3.—Full co-operation leading toward establishing a Canadian Army ordnance depot at Morinville was pledged at an enthusiastic meeting of citizens held in the town hall annex.

Now officers of Morinville and District Board of Trade can see no reason why, if Edmonton doesn't want it, the army can't locate at Morinville.

CANCEL the RENT INCREASE!

The St. Laurent government ordered an increase in rent without consulting the provinces or Parliament!

Four million Canadians were given this cruel blow a month before the Christmas festival!

So much for the Liberal Party's fine election promises about housing!

Must the children pay for Ottawa's cruelty in less milk, fewer Christmas toys, greater overcrowding? Will families be evicted in dead of winter?

ANSWER NO!

Demand of your MP's and local councils that they go on record now for cancelling the increase.

Give your children a real Xmas Gift by compelling Ottawa to cancel the rent increase — at once!

Time Out

By Dick Beddoes

NOW IS THE HOUR

Now is the hour for junior hockey moguls in Edmonton to be getting off the dime, so to speak, and hustling towards getting this city into a good league.

That is to say, it's about time they made some attempt to hook up with the entertaining Western Canada Junior Hockey League.

Actually, Edmonton should have been there this year, and would have been had the athletic clubs co-operated in forming a composite club.

But, as everyone knows, EAC's shot the composite team down in flames just when it seemed that three clubs—Canadians, EAC and Maple Leafs—were finally pulling together.

The clubs buried the hatchet all [illegible]

WE'RE STUCK WITH IT

So now we're stuck with a five-team junior loop, which some Alberta Amateur Hockey Association officials rate no better than 'B' calibre.

The teams are better balanced this term, meaning that Leafs and EAC are likely a lot worse than a year ago, while South Side and Canadians are somewhat better than formerly.

And while it is too early to judge yet, it is safe to say that no team in this year's league could have beaten either Maple Leafs or EAC of the 1948-49 circuit.

You might say that we have lost class to become more closely bunched.

On the other hand, visualize what kind of a composite outfit we could have had representing us in the Western Canada wheel. For instance, a probable lineup might have been:

Goal, Dave O'Meara and Buddy Noon; defence, Don Perry, George McAvoy, Fred Hucul, Brent Macnab and Don Crough; forwards, Eldor Thomas, Bruce Dickson, Len Haley, Don Haley, Duke Edmundson, Bill McNally, Doug Kilburn and one more import.

★ ★ ★

NO WORSE THAN SECOND

O'Meara is the son of Montreal sportswriter Baz O'Meara and is currently tending goal for Montreal Nationales. But EAC, who have an agreement with Canadiens, could have had the youngster shipped here.

McAvoy is with the Nationales and is highly regarded by them. Hucul, Noon, Macnab Crough, the Haleys, Thomas and Dickson are all leading lights with teams in the WCJHL. Kilburn is in senior company with Kimberley Dynamiters, while Perry, Edmundson and McNally, stick out like [illegible] the Sahara with this year's edition of EAC.

The Detroit Red Wing-sponsored Leafs would doubtless have come up with another forward as the team's second import.

It could have beer a pretty good club, chums. Perhaps no worse than second against such as Calgary Buffaloes, Medicine Hat Tigers and Moose Jaw Canucks.

So let's face it, Stan Ward Joel Smith, Derry Derrington and Bud Williamson: Now is the hour—to prepare for next year.

HEADLINING wrestling card at Stock Pavilion Tuesday night is Stu Hart, above, and Earl McCready in one part of a triple [illegible]

REFUSING TO let "business interfere with pleasure" secretary Bob Edwards, left, was around and about putting the heat on even the "brass" as annual banquet of Edmonton and District Thoroughbred Breeders' association was held at Macdonald last night. Longtime association president Jack Glover, centre, is willing to fork over for ticket but Jim Paul, manager of Exhibition association, pretends recent trip east has strapped him completely.

Plan Instal 'Tote' Board At Exhibition Race Track

Jack Glover was chairman and William Howard Taft Mead, livestock commissioner for the province, the main speaker as the annual banquet and dance of the Edmonton and District Thoroughbred Breeders' Association was held at the Macdonald hotel last night.

However the 'big' speech of the occasion was made by Jim Paul, manager of the Exhibition association. Even before the 'crowd of 175 or so gathered in the main dining room Paul disclosed to a smaller group that the Exhibition association has plans for the installation of a totalizator at the race track if not next year, then quite likely by 1951.

The 'tote', as it's known, is an electrically-operated odds-board. At present only Toronto's Woodbine, of all Canadian tracks, has one. It's quite likely, then, that Edmonton will be the second racing centre in the dominion to instal the totalizator.

Chairman Glover, president of the Edmonton and District Thoroughbred Breeders' association, took charge once the 'gate clanged open'.

His introductions were brief and to the point.

'Main speaker' Mead spoke largely of impressions gained while attending the recent Royal Winter Fair at Toronto. He talked in glowing terms of the Alberta livestock exhibits, quoting statistics to prove that the province was well to the fore in the matter of awards.

Mayor Parsons also spoke, bringing greetings "from the city."

Dancing concluded an enjoyable evening.

Mortons Upset Pats In Ladies Basketball

Mortons were the ones!

League leading Army and Navy Pats lost their first game in the Senior Ladies Basketball loop last night, Mortons downing them 35-31 after five minutes of overtime. In the second tilt Varsity Pandas overpowered cellar dwelling Starlets 31-26.

The main attraction of the evening between Pats, and their arch rivals Mortons, turned out to be one of the roughest and hardest fought games in the Ladies loop this season. At times the game almost got out of hand.

Mortons scored five points before Pats could even begin to show that they were on the floor and Clare Hollingsworth's gals were behind 18-12 at the half way mark.

Second half of the game saw the teams bunching together all the time, instead of giving a wide open passing display. On one play, Mortons' Kay MacBeth pivoted for a shot at the basket and tripped over someone's foot, falling flat on her face and sliding into the wall head first. She nearly got herself KO'd.

She returned to the game a few minutes later, however, sporting a black eye and a cut lip.

Just a few minutes after Kay's mishap, Evelyn Cramer of the Pats doubled up on the floor with a severely sprained ankle. Then late in the game, Pats' Dorothy Allan put her tooth through her lip and left the floor.

With just seconds to play score [illegible] the game, causing [illegible] overtime session. It [illegible] ense five minutes at that, [illegible] pushed, pulled, [illegible] the place.

But Mortons were not to be outdone, coming through with five [illegible]

[illegible] other game of the evening [illegible] ed the Pandas throughout the game, and [illegible], sparked by Joan McFarlane, were too strong in the final minutes for their younger adversaries.

PAIR FINED FOR SCALPING GRID DUCATS

TORONTO, Dec. 3—(BUP)—Two men were fined yesterday on charges of scalping tickets to last Saturday's dominion football final. Robert Henderson was fined $30 and Charles MacDougall $15.

The men were charged under the Ticket Speculation Act. It allows prosecution of any person who sells or tries to sell a ticket to any sport or show at a price above regulation cost.

Art Ross Enters Hall of Fame

BOSTON, Dec. 3—(CP)—Art Ross, general manager of Boston Bruins will be presented with his hockey Hall of Fame scroll during the National Hockey League game with Chicago Black Hawks tonight at the Boston Gardens.

The presentation, to be made by James B. Garvin of Kingston, Ont., president of the International Hockey Hall of Fame, will be witnessed by a large group of hockey celebrities.

Community Leagues Discuss Hockey

The Federation of Community leagues announced last night that all leagues desiring to enter any hockey division from pee wee through to intermediate must file their entries with the Recreation Commission before December 15.

Federation president Jim Macdonald claims that interest is keen everywhere except on the South Side. Says he: "Garneau, Bonnie Doon, and Scona Centre haven't so much as whispered what they intend to do regarding community league hockey."

All boys 18 and over desiring to referee are asked to contact Macdonald at the Recreation Commission headquarters.

Junior Hockey Game Postponed

South Side's entry in the Northern Alberta Junior Hockey league will not play Wetaskiwin Canadians at Wetaskiwin tonight as scheduled. Lack of ice has caused the postponement and the game will probably be played Tuesday at the Gardens as part of a double header.

MERLUK PIVOTS LINE FOR SASKATOON TILT

Stephen (Bing) Merluk will be at centre ice, on a line with Andy Clovechok and Don Culley, when Flyers clash with Saskatoon Quakers at Gardens tonight.

Recent injury to hard-luck Bernie Bathgate has forced coach Frank Currie's hand, resulting in winger Merluk shifting to a pivot spot.

Otherwise Currie will shoot against the gang from Saskatchewan with the same roster that has been steadily climbing in the standings for the past couple of weeks.

In fact Flyers can take over top place with a win over Quakers. The Saskatoon aggregation, sparked by Cy Thomas' hat-trick, edged pacemaking Stampeders 6-5 last night to open the door for Flyers, just a point away in second place.

Game time is 8:30 o'clock.

WCJHL PLAYER SUSPENDED INDEFINITELY

MOOSE JAW, Dec. 3—(BUP)—Defenceman Bill Shvetz of Crow's Nest Pass Lions of the Western Canada Junior Hockey league, will be on the sidelines indefinitely.

Secretary-Manager J. Harper Parry, of the league announced the suspension of Shvetz after he was given a misconduct and a match conduct penalty in a game against Lethbridge Native Sons Wednesday.

Parry says Shvetz case is being studied.

Broda 'Gets' Publicity For Leafs

TORONTO, Dec. 3—(CP)—Was the fat man's tune with the ominous lyrics sung this week by Conn Smythe, major-domo of Toronto Maple Leafs, merely a well-timed, harmless—but dashed neat—publicity stunt? Most observers seem to think so.

George (Oshawa Times-Gazette) Campbell calls it "pretty cold-blooded business" to make Broda the fall guy for an "obvious, desperate attempt" to find out whether youthful Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh Hornets is ready for the NHL.

On the other hand, Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman fairly laughs out loud at the idea Smythe or anybody else might be thinking of the Turk as a "goat."

Asks Coleman: "Into which cheek did . . . Smythe stick his tongue before he singled out . . . Broda as the 'goat' for the Leafs' annual slump? . . . Don't you think that Smythe really was employing a novel method of obtaining some publicity for professional hockey—which had been shoved off the sports pages by the East-West football final? Isn't the honest, patient, old Turk the last man whom you would expect to let down his teammates in any crisis?"

Ted (Toronto Telegram) Reeve says Broda may have lost his timing but no one can say the same about the "Hollerin' Major . . . He reserved the blast at his stylish stouts until the football finals were out of the way . . . and got it in just when the Leafs had a mid-week match that might need a little priming . . ."

Scores Three Goals As Calgary Loses 6-5

CALGARY, Dec. 3.—(CP)—Cy Thomas scored three goals last night as the last-place Saskatoon Quakers hung up a 6-5 victory over the league-leading Calgary Stampeders in a Western Canada Hockey League contest before 5,000 fans.

The hard-won victory for the Quakers ended Stamps' unbeaten-at-home record this season. They had won seven previous home starts.

The game had no effect on league standings as Saskatoon was five points behind the third-place Regina Caps before registering the victory—their sixth in 17 contests.

Thomas, a former Edmonton junior, scored two goals in the third period to break a 4-4 deadlock. His first tally was the last counter of a free-scoring first period.

Other goal scorers for Nick Metz's Quakers were Cy Rouse, Billy Johnson, and Reg Bentley.

Roy Heximer got two goals for Calgary with singletons going to Mitch Pechet, Doug Cairns and Gunnar Carlson.

Quakers, who lost their only other encounter here this season 5-3, opened up at a terrific clip and piled up a 4-1 lead at the end of the first period.

But in the second period, Calgary monopolized the goal scoring to tie the contest at 4-4. Thomas' two third-period counters put Saskatoon once more in the lead, when it appeared a re-inspired Calgary sextet was going to pull the game out of the fire.

MAHER ASSISTS FIRST

Rookie Carlson closed out the scoring at 14:04 of the final session. Coach Marty Burke pulled goalie Russ Dertell in the dying seconds but the strategy didn't pay off.

Rouse notched the game's initial counter when he banged in Bill Maher's rebound with Dertell flat on the ice. Defenceman Bill Johnson beat Dertell for Saskatoon's second goal on a long drive from the blue line.

Calgary, who seemed to have lost timing on passing plays, entered the scoring picture at 16:41 when Heximer took Bunny Dame's long pass and rammed home a long shot.

Reg Bentley scored Quakers' third goal when Dertell, who had come far out to stop a Saskatoon onslaught, failed to get back into position for Bentley's slap-shot. Thomas followed up 25 seconds later on a passing attack with Bentley and Tommy Burlington.

Quakers, who played the first period at a red-hot clip, slowed up somewhat in the second canto and veteran Roy Heximer took advantage by dipsy-doodling in for his second marker.

Rookie defenceman Hugh Coflin gave fast-skating Pechet a perfect helper to make the count 4-2. Late in the second session, Coflin again batted the puck towards the goal and pivot Doug Cairns was there to slap it in.

In the final period, Johnson set up the play that put Saskatoon ahead 5-4 with a blue-line pass to Thomas. The big left-winger drove in hard and unleashed a bullet shot that beat Dertell neatly.

Defenceman Vic Myles gave Thomas a similar opportunity two minutes later and again the Welshmin-born winger's powerful drive got by Dertell.

Defencemen Jack Taggart and Bud Emery of the Stamps were sitting out minor penalties when Thomas scored what proved the game-winning counter.

Calgary's last goal was the work of two rookies—Sid Finney and Carlson. Finney picked up a loose puck and slipped it to Carlson at the goal mouth.

Only nine minor penalties were called in the cleanly-played contest.

Quakers' goalie Cliff Dobson played a sound game making 33 stops. Dertell stopped 20.

Stamps appeared to miss veterans Dunc Grant, benched because the last year's W. C. S. H. L. scoring champ is in a slump, and rugged rearguard Julian Sawchuk.

Santucci Goes East In a Huff

REGINA, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—Football season never ends. That is, not for drug store quarterbacks, team coaches and officials.

The players can relax now until spring training. But the boys who like to rehash the season's play still carry on.

There's a heated discussion going on in Regina concerning the last game of the western playoffs at Calgary. And the arguments boil down to one question: "Why didn't coach Fred Grant of the Roughriders call out Pat Santucci to kick for that all important field goal in the dying minutes of the game?"

You may remember that Santucci, a Hamilton import, kicked convert after convert in monotonous succession during the season. Now Regina fans want to know why Santucci wasn't out to try for the three points that could have won Riders the western crown and a crack at the Grey Cup.

Opinions vary on why General Grant did not send Santucci in to play. The Hamilton import had been out of several games before the playoffs with an injured leg. That's why some say Santucci could not have possibly kicked for that field goal. Others claim Santucci didn't practice before the Calgary game and for that reason Grant didn't call on him.

Whatever the reason for Grant's failure to call on Santucci, it's no secret that hard feelings existed between the Hamiltonian and members of the Roughrider team. At a Roughrider party a few days after the western final, Santucci was asked to leave the get-together. Santucci left—for Hamilton, and the report is that Santucci will not be back with Saskatchewan next year.

In Winnipeg, football talk centres around possibilities of a new large-size football stadium for the Manitoba capital, the idea being that if a new sports arena could be erected future Grey Cup classics could be held in Winnipeg.

Fixture Tonight

A twin bill is in store for the basketball fans tonight at Varsity gym, when the four senior mens teams meet. Sparlings, who won their first game last week, will be seeking a second victory when they tangle with Varsity Bears in the opener at 7:30.

CHANCE to take over top spot in Western Canada Hockey league is Flyers as they tackle Saskatoon Quakers at Gardens tonight. Optimistically coach Frank Currie gives with 'V'-for-Victory sign, perhaps by way of spurring his squad to victory.

Feudin' 'n' Fightin', Casaba Style

There's a pretty good rhubarb brewing in senior men's basketball circles, headliners in what so far has been just an exchange of 'pleasantries' being: (a) Professor Maury Van Vliet, physical education strawboss at University of Alberta, (b) Bob Strother, sometimes known as 'Lefty', player-manager of Meteors.

Meteors, with four wins in as many starts including a full-blown 52-24 whacking of Prof. Van Vliet's Varsity Golden Bears last time out, have been manhandling the rest of the four-team league something fierce.

And in keeping with their string of successes Meteors have developed a big-shot complex—at least their opponents consider they have. So that the other afternoon Bears' coach Van Vliet, for one, went into a full wind-up and cut loose a number of verbal grenades at the runaway league leaders.

In effect the one-time Oregon 'U' three (or was it four?) letterman said Meteors weren't really such-as-much as a basketball machine.

He cut them down to size by labelling them anything but Canadian championship calibre. As well he made it plain Meteors would get nothing but lumps against coast aggregations, or when embroiled with teams of the newly-formed International loop down south.

The Grapes Are Sour

And yesterday Strother aimed his own high, hard one at Prof. Van Vliet, formerly his basketball mentor when the hustling Meteor manager was a Golden Bear in his own right.

'Sour grapes . . .'

This was the gist of a Strother reply.

"How can anyone say how good Meteors are when there isn't a team in the league within 15 points of us?" he exploded.

"We haven't even been tested. Why that last game against Varsity wasn't a good warm-up. We get more action out of a practice, with the subs taking on the regulars."

It seems Bears were rationed to an insignificant nine points in the second half. And to hear Strother tell it this dazzling offensive turned on by the collegians about compares to "Montreal Canadiens getting shut out for three successive games."

In other words if Prof. Van Vliet isn't so high on Meteors ("an interesting team, nothing more"), Strother looks on Bears with something akin to pity.

"Are the Bears still in the league?" he might put it.

Mortimer, Pearce and Guess Who?

Meteors, it seems, are drawing up the blue-prints for certain additions to the squad, calculated to enhance their chances considerably at playoff time.

"We'll have Geoff Mortimer and Gordon Pearce in shape by that time," Strother promises. Likewise he swears by George Mikan and all else that's holy in basketball circles, that Reg Clarkson will be sporting a Meteor uniform before too long.

Over this last one may, or may not, be disposed to run a temperature.

By actual count manager Strother has been coming up with this same announcement regularly over a period of 61 days. It has gotten so bad the make-up men look every morning for "the Clarkson announcement."

And they're mighty amazed when it fails to show up in the copy.

But leave us not digress further.

The hoopla gang will be hard at it again tonight at Varsity gym. No, Bears and Meteors do not get to play each other, the program reading, to wit, and viz: Varsity vs. Sparlings, Meteors vs. YMCA Toilers.

But the students and car-hawkers will be at each other again before long, by way of adding possible further fuel the Van Vliet-Strother mutual 'smear' campaign.

Maryland Wins

MIAMI, Dec 3—(AP)—The University of Maryland wound up its regular football season with a 13-0 victory over the University of Miami last night before 34,686 fans in the Orange Bowl stadium.

SAMSON TREATMENT is order of day for Pat Valentino, long-locked heavyweight boxer who hasn't had a haircut this year. That's Bronx heavy Raymond La Starza waving scissors menacingly towards Valentino's brow. La Starza waved his fists menacingly last night to whip Argentino's Cesar Brion in New York.

DECISIONS ARGENTINAN

La Starza Wins 37th Straight

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Roland La Starza, unbeaten Bronx butcher boy, claimed Argentine's Cesar Brion as his 37th victim last night on a unanimous 10-round decision at Madison Square Garden. La Starza weighed 187, Brion 192¼.

La Starza's efficient counter-punching overbalanced the wild righthand swinging of the Argentine belter in the opinion of all three officials.

Referee Frank Fullam had it 6-4, and judge Jack O'Sullivan voted for La Starza 5-3 with one even. Judge Charley Shortell scored it all even in rounds 4-4 with 2 even, but gave the Bronx kid the nod on points, 6-5.

This battle of two 22-year-old heavyweights failed to produce a challenger for Ezzard Charles, the NBA champ, at least in the immediate future. For the first two rounds it was a thrilling slugfest that had the crowd of 12,035, which paid $40,092, on its feet and yelling madly. After that the action slowed down.

Some customers gave vent to their displeasure with boos at the final bell.

Brion, with four inches in height and reach and five pounds on La Starza, failed to uncover the devastating right-hand punches that rocketed him to a Garden main go by a knockout over Bernie Reynolds.

La Starza, a bruising and punishing counter puncher, threw away his customary caution in the first two rounds when it seemed he might score a knockout. After that he fought carefully, seldom leading. There were no knockdowns.

The six-foot, 2¼ inch Brion seldom took advantage of his edge in reach to stave off his man.

Al Anderson Re-Appointed As Joe Sparling Resigns

All those resignations which were supposed to follow Annis Stukus' re-appointment as Eskimo football coach failed to materialize.

In fact, only one member of the executive—Joe Sparling—hung up his front office cleats when the 16 team directors met last night.

And while Sparling's resignation was accepted, Al Anderson was named manager for another year. Anderson simply named his price and the officials took him up on it without so much as batting an eye.

Sparling's resignation was given for business reasons but it is understood that he also was opposed to Stukus' return as coach.

SPARLING HELPED

Throughout the football season Sparling hired several Eskimo players, and American imports Chuck Fenenbach and Earl Elsey are still with the Sparling-Davis firm. Sparling was also a heavy purchaser of season tickets, laying it on the line for something like $1,000 worth.

The directors also approved legislation which will allow for perpetuating the executive from year to year.

To do this the number of officials was increased from 16 to 20, with five spots to be up for election each year. Once elected to the board of directors a member will thus serve for four years.

This year the five positions to be filled will [illegible] Sparling's [illegible] and the four new [illegible]. The Touchdown Club will have the privilege of [illegible] the five of [illegible] each year.

THE PRESENT SLATE

Following are the members of the executive today, grouped by years which they have yet to serve:

Bob Bradburn, Percy Daigle, Bud Marquardt, Dr. Walter McKenzie and Walker Blake, three years; Henry Singer, Walter Sprague, Ken Montgomery, Hon. Lucien Maynard and Henry Johnson, two years; Joe Shoctor, Murray Montague, Moe Lieberman, Eric Duggan, and Bill Forster, one year.

No formal report was forthcoming from Stukus, who is currently hunting for football ivory in eastern Canada. However, he is understood to have 'talked turkey' with Toronto Argonauts' Doug Pyzer and Montreal Alouettes' Bronco Reese.

GLISSON RIDES SECOND TRIPLE IN TWO DAYS

SAN BRUNO, Calif., Dec. 3—(AP)—Hard-riding Gordon Glisson, making a stirring comeback after a spill two months ago, bagged his second triple in two days at Tanforan yesterday.

The strong-armed jockey brought in Huon Kid to an easy three-length victory in the six furlong feature event. He had previously chalked up victories on Blue Wing Teal in the first race and Shocking Pink in the fourth.

Glisson still is the leading rider in North America in spite of a lengthy layoff after he suffered a broken collar bone at Jamaica.

Westglen, Vic Win Hoop Games

Victoria and Westglen roared to high school basketball victories at Westglen last night as the senior hoopsters officially opened the winter season.

Over 450 fans saw Vic wallop Eastwood 40-15 while Westglen edged Univerity Hi 31-25

Don Montcrieff with 13 and Johnny Galanka with nine paced the high-flying Victorias. Bob Hepburn paced the badly outclassed Eastwood quintet with seven.

Don Blackwell fired 12 points, four of them in overtime, to lead Westglen to a win. At the end of regulation time the score was tied 25-25 but in the three-minute overtime sesion Westglen potted three baskets. Fred Windwick bagged 11 points for Varsity.

Als' Chief Denies Going To Toronto

TORONTO, Dec. 3—(CP)—Eric Cradock, one of the owners and a director of Montreal Alouettes Football Club, said yesterday he still retains his financial interest in the Dominion champions.

Commenting on a Montreal report that he would move his football interests to Toronto, Cradock said he had no plans for a change.

"It would probably be better for me if my football interests were in Toronto because I live here and my business is here," he said. "But my investment is in the Alouettes and I haven't any plans for pulling out of Montreal and putting money in a Toronto team."

IRONMEN WON'T FORCE TOOHY TO REPORT

SEATTLE, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Seattle Ironmen of the Pacific Coast hockey league, will make no attempt to force defenceman Ralph Toohy to report.

Toohy had telegraphed acceptance of terms earlier and said he would report after the finish of the Canadian football season. Then a couple of days ago he signed with Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec amatuer hockey loop.

Owner Frank Dotten of the Ironmen said Toohy apparently had such a love of football that even if he did report, he'd be late again next season.

Elegant Eleanor Is Eager Beaver

Messrs. Levin and Smith,
5 East 57th Street,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Herman and Oliver,

The other day, as you know, my wife bought a one-per cent interest in "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes," the new musical you are producing, and since we've known each other a long time I think it's only fair to let you know that you're in for a hatful of headaches.

Perhaps I can best explain by [illegible] time my missus invested a few dollars in a Broadway show . . .

In 1943, when I was getting ready to produce "Carmen Jones," I let Eleanor buy a rooting interest in the show, first pointing out that it was going to be a costly production and she didn't figure to get any profits on her investment for at least six months.

"Why don't you double the price of the tickets and cut it down to three months?" said my wife.

I chuckled, but the chuckle got lost in my throat when I saw the [illegible] only mean. This show is going [illegible]

TAKES COMMAND

[illegible] into rehearsal I found out an important fact about married life: A wife may show no particular in[illegible] so much as a share of [illegible] ing the president of the company where to head in. And if the president also happens to be her husband, he's lucky if he doesn't find himself out on the ledge, washing the office windows.

When the estimates for the "Carmen Jones" scenery were submitted [illegible] ever, on one occasion she did save me plenty of money. When Lee Shubert offered to rent me a thea[illegible] brought him around by threatening to send Eleanor up to see him.

The week before we opened in New York, she telephoned George [illegible] week-ends with us in the country. "Let's not have any nonsense about this one," she told the critic. "If you give 'Carmen Jones' a mild review, no dessert; poor review, no blankets; and out-and-out pan, wet sheets."

EAGER BEAVER

Of course, I don't want you to get the idea that I'm panning Eleanor. Mrs. R., as you know, is one of the nicest gals in our town, and as generous as bank night in a movie theatre with a bad picture. But like all women, the minute she has a folding-money interest in a [illegible] her cut is going to be, why she [illegible] witness to this transformation, and [illegible] most awesome and spine-chilling changes in the whole gamut of feminine quick-change artistry.

So unless I miss my guess, you [illegible] ner the Entrepreneur.

[illegible] economy, she's a cinch to make some interesting suggestions. For instance, she may notice that producers, once a show is open, haven't much to do, and wonder why they can't double as ushers. And if she does, you fellows might save yourselves a lot of last-minute [illegible]

"Hard to say," I told her. "It [illegible] is."

[illegible] My show," said Eleanor.

Fraternally,
BILLY ROSE.

Socialism on Trial In Australia Soon

After Eight Years Rule Socialists Face Election

By George McCadden

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—The fate of Socialism and Communism in Australia for at least the next three years will be decided in a general election Dec. 10.

A united, free-enterprise opposition, heartened by a Conservative victory in neighboring New Zealand, hopes to unseat Australia's Labor Socialist government. The Socialists have governed the country since 1941.

At stake also is the political future of the Communist party. The combined opposition liberal and country parties have promised to outlaw the Communist party if they win.

Prime minister Joseph Chifley, leader of the Labor party, wants to give the Communist party a continued legal place in the nation's political life. Outlawing the party would only drive the communists underground, he contends.

The Communist party has only one member in one of the state parliaments and none in the federal parliament. It has influence in some trade unions.

LITTLE NATIONALIZATION

Australia has trailed behind both Britain and New Zealand on nationalization. Labor contends it no longer is an issue, but the opposition Liberal and Country parties disagree.

The labor government's nationalization campaign came a cropper in October, when the privy council in London held that government legislation to take over Australia's banks was unconstitutional.

Both Chifley and his No. 1 aide, attorney-general H. V. Evatt, accepted the privy council ruling and disclaimed any ambitious plans to nationalize Australian industry.

But opposition leaders point out that the Labor party still has not repealed a plank in its platform calling for nationalization of the means of production, distribution, exchange and credit.

The new parliament Dec. 10 will be 65 per cent larger than the present one. It will have 129 members instead of 74. The opposition has accused Chifley's government of gerrymandering in laying out new election districts.

Lords Continues Ban on Women

LONDON, Dec. 3.—(Reuters)—British women peers and some of their sisters in more lowly spheres are angry with Prime Minister Attlee for "snubbing" a request to receive a deputation to discuss their admission to the House of Lords on equal terms with men.

16 DAYS IN JAIL FOR DISABLED VET

DORCHESTER, N.B., Dec. 3.—(CP)—Edwin A. Rutledge of Baie Verte, N.B., a disabled veteran of the first world war, was released yesterday from county jail here after spending 16 days in custody for failure to pay a tax bill amounting to $36.92.

The debt, a poll-tax levy against all male residents of the county, was paid by Moncton branch of the Canadian Legion.

Rutledge is the father of eight children. Two sons served in the Second World War. One was killed and the other seriously wounded.

More Canadians Win at Chicago

CHICAGO, Dec. 3—(CP)—Canadian farmers have won 56 first-prize and championship ribbons in the international livestock exposition and hay and grain show. Canadians have five more of the prized purple and blue ribbons than last year.

The score by provinces: Ontario, 41; Alberta, 7; British Columbia, 6; Saskatchewan, 2.

Ontario's score was five less than last year and Alberta had two more. British Columbia and Saskatchewan failed last year to pick up any first-place or championship ribbons.

Officials said Canadians' share of ribbons was impressive, outnumbered as they were by farmers of 29 states. A total of 838 first prizes and championships were awarded.

It's the story of the Richards of Red Deer, and it's the kind of a story you could quote next time anybody suggests that building up a championship herd of cattle is a cinch.

Shell Try First In Two Years

By Don Flach

Shell Oil Co., large U.S. independent, has started its first Alberta test well in two years—since making its natural gas discovery at Jumping Pound. New well is a stratigraphic test in the Peace River area about 25 miles northwest of Peace River Town.

New well is Shell Runaway Lake No 1 and is being drilled on lsd 16 of 25-86-20W5. Site is about 30 miles north and west of the showing found at Normandville by Imperial.

At Barrhead, O'Meara No. 1 has set casing to the bottom at 4,020 feet and an effort will be made to place it on commercial production after a squeeze cement job to seal off formation water.

23 GRAVITY AIL

Well is bottomed in the Madison limestone and is located on lsd 2-15-58-5W5, on an Imperial farmout and is a quarter of a mile north of Stanolind Imperial Barrhead No. 1. Gravity of crude is about 23 degrees, same as at the earlier discovery.

Another test is being made of Spring Coulee area along Alberta's southern boundary, this time by the National Petroleum Corporation Ltd. of Calgary. Well is on lsd 14-36-3-23W4, about half a mile east of Cord Spring Coulee No. 1 which struck the Madison at 5,989 feet and found a promising but unproductive zone 80 feet thick.

Seismic work indicates the zone is 175 feet higher at the site of the new National well. It is presently drilling at about 1,000 feet.

Redwater and Leduc-Woodbend oil production, together with seven other small pools in the north-central portion of the province totalled 1,460,832 barrels in October, a drop of nearly 130,000 barrels from 1,592,111 barrels produced during September.

47,124 A DAY

Daily production from these wells during the month was 47,124 barrels. Provincial daily average was just over the 60,000 barrel mark.

The Leduc-Woodbend field had a daily average of 25,234 barrels from 325 wells during the month and a total of 13,196,643 barrels since found.

Redwater, with its 225 producing wells, turned out a daily average of 21,274 barrels for an October total of 650,499 barrels and a cumulative total since discovery of 2,806,124 barrels.

Oils Steady To Stronger

CALGARY, Dec. 3.—Oils were mainly steady to firmer in today's session on the Calgary Exchange.

With volume totalling 72,465, most stocks moved in narrow range to close unchanged.

Biggest gain was scored by Calgary and Edmonton which advanced 10 points and closed at $8.10.

Federated was up five points at $1.65.

Early Wheat Deliveries Urged by Trade Minister

OTTAWA, Dec. 3—(CP)—Western farmers who participated in the five-year wheat pool will receive extra payments when the pool ends next July, Trade Minister Howe said in an interview yesterday.

The sooner deliveries of the current crop are made to the Board, the sooner payment will be made.

Need to clear up the pool was one of two factors involved in the government's first peace-time appeal to farmers to increase deliveries to elevators, said Mr. Howe.

OVERSELLING A DANGER

The other stemmed from the fact that Canada has commitments to ship "well over" 200 million bushels of wheat to foreign-country customers this crop year, and "Canada has a short crop."

"We can't sell what we haven't delivered to us."

Final Dominion Bureau of Statistics estimate sets this year's crop at 67,240,000 bushels, compared with 93,300,000 last year.

"We are in grave danger of being oversold on wheat from this crop," said the Trade Minister.

Beginning with the new year, the government is going to start urging farmers to "Please deliver all the wheat they possibly can as early as they can for the balance of this year, so that we can deliver that wheat on commitments already made."

Because the government, through the Wheat Board, is in the business of selling wheat, Mr. Howe said, it could not divulge the details of commitments.

SAME AS 1948

However, they include 203,000,000 bushels to the recently-formed International Wheat Agreement, as well as commitments to ship wheat to Israel, Iraq, Iran, Japan and other countries.

These orders for Canadia grain were similar to the amounts which Canada agreed to fill last year, Mr. Howe said. But then, "we sold everything we got last year."

Mr. Howe declined to say how western framers will market their wheat after the pool is ended.

Questioned as to whether a new pool would be initiated, he merly stated:

"Government policy has not yet been formulated."

The pool was started in 1945 as a means of stabilising wheat prices. It took then over marketing of the product from the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Salty Broadway Play 'Educates' Londoners

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Dec. 3—(CP)—Britain's biggest box-office hit, "A Streetcar Named Desire," seems to be making too much money for its own good.

The play is such a sensational success that parliament is going to make one more try to find out where the profits go.

Wilson Harris, Independent member will ask in the Commons next week why some stage plays now showing in London's West End are free from entertainment tax, which amounts to about 15 per cent of the price of each seat.

The query by Harris is the latest in a parliamentary quiz which is causing a stir in show business. The result may be a government investigation into theatrical productions by non-profit companies.

That is what members of parliament are growling about:

"A Streetcar Named Desire" opened two months ago at the Aldwych theatre and has been playing to capacity houses ever since. Its language and Vivien Leigh's performance as sad, mad Blanche Dubois made "Streetcar" a national craze.

The critics all lauded Miss Leigh and some singled out a pleasing performance in a supporting role by Vancouver's Bernard Braden.

Then M.P.'s wanted to know why an American author should be earning royalties estimated at 17 per cent on a production that is tax-free.

The government answer: If producers can persuade customs officials that their activities are "partly educational," as well as non-profit-making, they can obtain certificates exempting a play from tax.

"Streetcar" is staged by Tennent Productions, Limited, a non-profit company, which apparently convinced customs authorities of the educational value of the play.

Rome's Farnese Palace, one of the finest specimens of Roman architecture, was completed in 1526 and now houses the French embassy.

Coldwell Foresees Atomic Revolution

If atomic energy brings an expected industrial revolution in the next 10 years, private enterprise will be doomed, National CCF leader M. J. Coldwell said here yesterday.

He made the prediction in an interview following a luncheon address on Canada's atomic energy project at Chalk River to the Men's Canadian Club in the Macdonald hotel.

Said Mr. Coldwell: "By its very nature, atomic energy is something that cannot be controlled or directed by private enterprise. Such a vast power must be monopolized on national and international levels if mankind is to survive."

If adequate measures are not taken to establish atomic industrial controls, Canada's economy and the economy of many other nations will be wrecked, he said. The atomic industrial revolution will of necessity lead to mass unemployment if left in the hands of private industry, he declared.

In his luncheon address, Mr. Coldwell described his visit, with other Canadian parliamentarians, to the Chalk river plant some weeks ago.

Scientists told the visiting MPs that 1,000 pounds of atomic material would generate sufficient power to operate all railway systems and industrial plants on the North American continent. More complete control is needed before such a condition will come to pass, the CCF leader said.

He advocated spending of more money on the Canadian project stating that Canada has spent only $45,000,000 since 1945 on atomic research while the United States has spent billions.

Prof. E. S. Keeling, club president was chairman.

Party Plans To Discuss Oil Policy

National committee of the CCF will meet in Winnipeg early in the new year to formulate a federal and interprovincial oil policy for the party.

Meeting was announced by Alberta CCF leader Elmer E. Roper at yesterday's session of the provincial convention at the Masonic Temple.

Resolutions from Lac Ste. Anne and Cherhill CCF club and from the Calgary Constituency Association asking for establishment of a special committee to formulate an oil policy were referred to the national committee.

CAMPAIGN IS ENDORSED

Delegates approved a $17,500 for the year beginning Nov. 1 1949, after failing to give support to an amended motion which would have increased the budget to $21,700.

Of the total $13,000 will be used for organization funds, including $3,000 in salaries for three part-time organizers and $2,000 for a director of organization.

Delegates approved the CCF national council's recommendation for a three-year expansion drive co-ordinating provincial and national activity.

ALBERTA QUOTA

Alberta quota for the three-year period will be $15,000, half of which will be subscribed in cash and pledges in the next year.

About $4,000 of the amount is already pledged for 1950, President Mrs. Nellie Peterson, Mayerthorpe, reported.

Three year expansion drive funds will include $25,000 to be used for federal election spending. Objective for all Canada in the drive is $175,000 of which $48,000 will be spent in the western provinces for education and organization during the three-year period, delegates were told.

CITY THEME PROPOSAL

A contest to find a typical [illegible] theme and [illegible] is being considered by Mayor Sid Parsons.

Impressed by his recent trip to Toronto, where Calgary rugby fans staged such a successful promotion of their beloved Cowtown, the mayor thinks Edmonton should have something similar on which it can capitalize.

"What does Calgary care whether everybody from Nome to Mexico City thinks their streets teem with cattle and cowboys?" he says. "The [illegible] thing to them is that outsiders all talk about Calgary and plan to attend their Stampede."

War Medals To Veterans

Eleven veterans of World War Two were presented last night with recently minted service medals at a muster parade of 44 Heavy Anti-Aircraft Workshop and 156 Light Air Detachment, RCEME.

The presentations included the 1939-45 Star, France and Germany Star, Defence of Britain Medal, Canadian Voluntary Service Medal; War Medal and Efficiency Medal.

Presentations were made by Lt. Col. R. F. Jobson O.B.E. who is commander of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers for the Western Command of the Canadian Army.

Veterans of the 44 HAA Workshop who received awards are Capt. Charles Heath, Sgt. Maj. L. M. Roberts, Sgt. Maj. R. D. Couper, Sgt. Maj. R. W. Davies, Staff Sgt. J. A. Roberts, Sgt. A. H. Anderson, Cpl. D. Sirman, Pte. A. R. Currie, Pte. R. J. Dunwoodie, Pte. H. W. Graham and Staff Sergeant G. W. Lardner of the 156 Light Air Detachment.

Jury Favors Truck Ban After Death

Driver Freed of Blame In City Street Tragedy

Verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the Nov. 23 traffic death of Ron McCready, six, of 11310 96 street.

Driver of the truck, Alexander Gibbons of 13136 122 street, was exonerated from blame but the jury reported that it felt his truck was not safe to operate on city streets.

Jury was told the boy, playing with a chum and two dogs dashed from between two parked cars and ran into the side of the truck, falling under its rear wheels.

MECHANIC REPORT

Constable Al Smith told the jury that the mechanic in charge of police vehicles found that the 1938 truck was not fit to be operated on city streets.

The brakes were only 25 per cent efficient and one of the clearance lights were missing, he said.

"It is our opinion," jury's verdict read, "That motor vehicles of this class should be kept off the highways."

Constable Attacked

A special constable, W. A. Chalmers, 225 Alberta block, was taken to Royal Alexandra hospital last night after being assaulted by a gang of four youths. He was attacked at 103 street and Jasper avenue after he had tried to stop a disturbance.

ARMOR-PLATED SOLDIERS will be sword-fighting in Westglen high school auditorium next week. From Monday through Saturday, Shakespeare's famous play "Julius Caesar" will be staged by Students' Theatre Group. Produced along lines of Cecil B. DeMille's Hollywood spectacle, play will be acted on special stage built to back of auditorium. Caught by photographer during rehearsal break-off this week were Jon Granik (left), (Brutus) and John Wood (Casca). Cigarettes are strictly modern.

COLORFUL COSTUMING will add much to play's setting—Rome of 2,000 years ago. Specially designed, costumes are said to be authentic according to history books. Designer is Alwyn Scott, also producer-director of the play, shown adjusting Josephine Bailey's (Calpurnia) gown.

North American Nations Get Together on Radio

By Don Flach

North American radio hearing should be better because of a little-heard-of group presently meeting in Montreal.

With representatives from all the countries of North America the [illegible] known as the North American Regional Broadcasting Association [illegible] the job they are trying to do is sort out the broadcasting frequencies of all the broadcasting stations on the continent.

Last such meeting was held in 1937 and has come to be known in radio cricles as the Havana Conference. At that time the conference was faced with the task of sorting out the broadcasting frequencies of 800 stations overlapping on the radio dial between the frequencies of 550 and 1600 kilocycles.

Now the task is infinitely greater. There are now [illegible] stations that have to be fitted into the same length of wave band.

Object of the convention is to [illegible] each station a channel permitting operation within tolerable limits of interference from its fellow stations.

It is highly undesirable for two stations in the Maritimes to operate on the same frequency. The danger is always present of one interfering with the other, thus impairing the efficiency of both.

However, if one of the frequencies is allocated to a station out on the prairies or in British Columbia, then the chance of interference is [illegible] the likelihood of the Maritime station being received on the prairies (or vice versa) are very remote.

Delegations from Canada, United States, Cuba, the Dominican Republic and the Bahamas are presently in Montreal for the conference. Only major country not represented is Mexico, but her position in the over-all pattern of North American broadcasting is not being ignored.

★ ★ ★

Another [illegible] of the conclusions reached by public opinion polls has come to light during the past week which again raises the question of their value.

The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion, in what it describes as a [illegible] the following question:

"Generally speaking, do you think the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation is doing a good job, or a poor job?"

In breaking down replies, it was found that 45 percent thought that the organization was doing a good job, fifteen per cent had no opinion on the question, 24 per cent considered them doing just a fair job and only 16 per cent said they were doing a poor job.

HIGHEST IN QUEBEC

On a provincial basis it was found that the CBC gets its highest degree of approval in Quebec where 54 per cent of those interviewed said the Corporation was doing a good job.

The conflicting result comes in a report carried in Canadian Broadcaster and Telescreen of information given the Massey Commission on Arts and Letters by W. E. Elliot of the Elliot-Haynes organization.

Mr. Elliott told the commission that a survey conducted by his organization indicated that 58 per cent of the [illegible] were in favor of a privately-owned system of broadcasting in Canada as opposed to [illegible] per cent who voted for a publicly-owned system and 16 per cent who favored a dula system.

Perhaps some of these interpreters of public opinion can tell us why 58 per cent of Canadians are in favor of "booting the CBC out the window," while only 16 per cent think they are doing a poor job.

Such a conflict in results lends weight to the suspicion that they may be interpreted to meet the requirements of the sponsors.

Some of the highlights for the week include Robert Louis Stevensons "Catriona" on Stage 50 . . . "Dear Ruth" with Joan Caulfield and William Holden in the Monday night Radio Theatre . . . Wednesday night with a dramatization of the Life of Nelson and distinguished artist Zara Nelsova, cellist . . . Racial and religious prejudice on Citizens' Forum . . . Metropolitan Opera (Saturday) with "Der Rosenkavalier."

You've probably heard on the radio Mr. Borge's own [illegible] speaking [illegible].

Example: [illegible] sandwich, please [illegible] a chirp after "sandwich" for the comma and "sput" for the period after "pi[illegible]

The 37-year-old comedian-musician was born in Denmark of musical parents. By the age of 10 he was hailed as a virtuoso [illegible] Copenhagen [illegible] pianist.

He started his present career as humorist via the route [illegible] show business [illegible] leading player at the last minute.

AD LIB ARTIST

He had written special [illegible] for a musical revue when one of the stars became ill. Borge was implored to fill in, and kept the audience laughing most of the evening with spontaneous ad libbing at the piano.

Hailed as a new star by critics he soon became the highest paid artist in Denmark.

How did he come to this continent?

When Denmark was invaded during the last war, he was starring in a revue in Sweden—which was just as well since he had been ribbing Hitler's Germany over the air for years, and the Nazis were gunning for him.

So Borge and his wife decided to get out of Europe while the getting was good, and took the last ship out for the U.S.—with just the $20 he could take out of Sweden.

In America, someone introduced him to Rudy Vallee, who thought he was wonderful. Vallee told Bing Crosby about him, and Crosby liked him so much he put him on the old Kraft Music Hall show for 54 performances.

That made him on this continent.

Predicts Air Giant

BRISTOL, England.—(CP)—A. E. Russell, chief designer of the Bristol Aeroplane Company, forecast air liners twice as heavy as the 130-ton Brabazon. Such a plane, he said, would have a wing span of 300 feet and passenger accommodation for 250.

Philharmonic Future Dark

With just four days to go before a new and revitalized Philharmonic orchestra gives its first concert of the season, Edmonton music-lovers haven't given their own symphony much support.

Philharmonic business manager Hector Wyman said in an interview this week that only about $1,000 worth of tickets have so far been sold.

Most of them are $5 season tickets which give patrons reserved seats at the three concerts to be presented this season.

ONLY 200 SO FAR

That means that only about 200 citizens so far intend to attend Wednesday night's symphony concert.

McDougall United Church holds 1,500 people.

Unless a lot more "music-lovers" hop to it, there'll be over 1,000 blank seats facing the civic symphony players when they climb on the platform.

The Philharmonic has been completely reorganized during the past year and members have worked hard to prepare what promises to be a first-rate concert Wednesday night.

And they're doing their best to sell what they believe. in Only Edmonton won't buy.

"We've got everybody selling tickets that'll sell," said business manager Wyman. Tickets are available at Philharmonic offices, at downtown music stores and from various organizations around the city.

CIRCULAR LETTERS

About 1,500 circular letters have been mailed out to spur citizens into supporting Edmonton's Symphony.

Carol Festival Plans Prepared

Four Nights of Christmas Music To Be Heard in City

This year's Rotary Carol Festival is going to be bigger and better than ever.

Annual Christmas Carol event will be held Dec. 12 to Dec. 15 in McDougall United Church.

About 35 city choirs are expected to participate, which means that some 1,000 choral singers will be getting together during the four nights to supply Edmonton with Christmas music.

ADVANCE INFORMATION

Plans are still being finalized, but here's some of the advance information available this week.

All churches will be announcing details of the event during services tomorrow.

Each evening's program will be broadcast over local radio stations.

Programs will be piped to the corner of 101 street and Jasper avenue so strolling citizens can enjoy the music.

Before each concert begins, a few minutes of good old-fashioned church bell ringing will be heard on the 101 street public address system.

OTHER PROGRAMS

Each evening's program will begin at 7:45.

New scheme planned for this year's festival is to have groups at a city hospital and at three children's homes sing, too. But rather than put them to the bother of travelling to McDopgall Church, they will sing on their own home grounds and their carolling will be transmitted to audiences in the church.

Master of ceremonies will be Harold Fazackerley. Scenery is being designed by Len Jordan. CFRN's G. R. "Dick" Rice is in charge of publicity.

VIOLINIST

Boy Prodigy To Play With Philharmonic

Next week's Philharmonic concert will see a young city musician make his first big appearance before the public.

He's Joe Boon, 15 years old, who is described as a prodigy on the violin.

"Discovered" by Philharmonic business manager Hector Wyman, the lad auditioned for conductor Edgar Williams recently, and made such an impression on Mr. Williams (who has been playing the violin for some 30 or 40 years) that he was ready to have the teen-ager play in Wednesday night's concert without even rehearsing with the orchestra.

But he's rehearsing with the orchestra just the same and conductor Williams has told him to "stand by" for the concert.

Hector Wyman described the youth as "a real prodigy."

Yule Theme For Concert

Edmonton's Junior String Orchestra will present a Christmas concert of familiar melodies on Tuesday, Dec. 13.

Ray LeRoy Olson, of the Dominion Institute of Music, made the announcement this week.

His group will play in the Masonic Temple. Starting time will be 7.30 p.m.

In addition to orchestral selections, the program will include violin [illegible] quartettes, and films. The movies will be shown after the concert. Main one is titled "Story of the Violin."

Special invitation is extended to all parents to attend the pre-Christmas event.

TEA-TIME TESSIES OF 1970 GATHER IN MOM's FINERY

FEMININE CLOTHES CONSCIOUSNESS starts at a tender, early age. Favorite pastime of the tricycle set is taking their dollies to tea and dressing in mother's feathers 'n furbelows for the occasion. Glamour misses of a future era, Betty Raisbeck, left, Mary Shearer, Doreen Bevington, Cheri Belanger, enjoy tea-hour chatter about forthcoming doll bazaar to be held by Robertson United Church Women's Association, Circle 5, Wednesday.

SLEEPY-TIME DOLLIES MUST BE TENDED WITH LOVING CARE

CURLY-HEADED MOPPETS, Karin Neilson, left and Cheri Belanger are practising the art of mother-love. Their very special dolls are dressed and undressed, cuddled, scolded with the deep concern of a real mother. Dotted Swiss organdy-covered cradle is the soft, cozy bed for Karin's favorite baby doll. Cradle was made by Circle Five members for their bazaar. Hundreds of such carefully made novelties will be on display at Robertson Church lower hall Wednesday.

BUSY CONVENER OVERSEES PRODUCTION

DETAIL WORK of the Robertson Circle Bazaar falls into busy hands of convener Mrs. B. W. Shearer. Active member of the W.A. for some time, Mrs. Shearer laughs proudly when she tells of the diligence of Circle Five members when they prepare for their annual doll bazaar.

Special Hour Set Aside by Group For Youngsters to Dollie Shop

Fashionable tea hour of 4:30 p.m. will be a time of brisk activity at Robertson United Church hall Wednesday.

Tea will be served to kindergarten set shoppers at midget-size tables. The young'uns will be able to "oh" and "ah" with delight, pick and chose among the array of doll finery at this special time set aside for them.

President Mrs. W. H. McKinnon announced this arrangement had been decided upon to please both generations.

Mrs. E. J. Barnes is tea convener.

Annual Doll Bazaar To Take Place Wed. At Robertson Church

Mrs. G. M. Cormie will officially open the annual Doll Bazaar to be held by Circle Five of Robertson United Church Women's Association.

Opening is marked for Wednesday at Robertson Church hall.

Circle Five members have built a fine reputation for themselves in the doll world of fashion with their imaginatively designed costumes, novelty furniture and doll accessories.

Pre-Christmas sale and display will feature doll specialties to delight feminine fancies of fashion favorites of 1965. Members have exercised their ingenuity with design, their skill with needle and patience with hours of work.

From a left-over piece of gay plaid wool, someone has fashioned ski suits, complete with hoods for the dainty dollies.

From a tatter of an old raincape, someone else has devised a white raincoat with red hood and red rubber boots for a China-eyed doll.

Fuss, feathers, furbelows feature in a delightful assortment of period costumed dolls, dressed by the members for their annual sale.

Tiny model hats, the dream of Lily Dache, have been shaped with painstaking care as have the lace-trimmed slips, petticoats, tiny hankies. Some dolls are even wearing lastex girdles.

Lounging pyjamas, housecoats, frothy nighties, tea-time frocks of velvet, evening gowns of satins, taffetas . . . everything a motherly little girl could wish for her lovely dollie . . . will be shown.

Tiny hand-made toys for dolls, house furniture and novelties will be other major attractions with the assortment of dolls.

PAINSTAKING CARE OF CIRCLE FIVE MEMBERS INDICATES BAZAAR SUCCESS

DOLL FASHIONS OF '50 will be shown Wednesday at Robertson Church Lower Hall when Circle Five of the Women's Association hold their annual Doll Bazaar. For months members have been at work with needle and fabric, sewing diligently for success of their group project. Mrs. C. E. Walsh, left, Mrs. H. F. Neilson, Mrs. Olav Aaberg, Mrs. I. B. Macdonald busy themselves with last-minute touches to a group of fashionably gowned dolls. Pre-Christmas timing of bazaar enables shoppers to pick and choose among this assortment of doll world figures, fancies and furbelows. Period costumes, modern dress and activity outfits will be featured.

SHOPPING GUIDE

First Shipments Of Jap Oranges Here

By Bea Thrifty

Late afternoon shoppers yesterday had first chance at initial shipts of the juicy Japanese oranges.

Today they're available in a number of shops at prices ranging from $1.69 per box to $1.95.

Promises of plenty keep our hopes high for a Christmas sweet with the tangy taste of the succulent oranges. Prices will drop as the Yuletide date approaches. As a matter of fact by Dec. 22 we'll be paying about $1.39 per box . . . so predict local merchandisers.

* * *

Suddenly great reems of merchandise have appeared in our local shops . . . merchandise hitherto considered almost impossible to buy.

Obviously the crafty ol' merchants have been saving their goodies for the rush of Christmas shopping.

* * *

For instance, one large department store featured a fine shirt sale this week. Shirts were of a regularly $5.50 selling line . . . going at $3.95 . . . which is a fair saving.

Clever trick of the buyers was this:

They purchased thousands of yards of quality material and farmed it out to manufacturers with well-known brand name. New shirts sell with workmanship and quality of brand name . . . at little more than cost price.

Good idea, what!

* * *

Hear happy little rumors that a new nylon stocking will be unconditionally guaranteed against runs, snags, holes for three months . . . nice deal if we could get it, dears.

Let's hear more of this kind of talk, shall we?

* * *

Whoopse-daisy-do!

I'm beginning to glow with holiday excitement. I glowed specially bright today when I spotted the new assortment of gaily colored wax candles shaped in symbols of the Merry Yuletide.

Top o' my list is a pair of wax poinsetties to go into that low bowl for centrepiece magic. The bright red flowers, surrounded by green leaves, have a wick in the centre of the bud. When aflame . . . a pretty sight, indeed.

* * *

Here's to keeping the pretty wax candle flowers for season-round decorations. They sell at one dollar per pair.

* * *

Other wax candle jobs light the season with joy as quartets of angels, Eskimo families, carol-singing children, penguins and Santa Claus.

These go in sets at $1 per.

If you want to go in for this affair in a really big way there are huge [illegible] candles selling at $4.95 each . . . which seems like a lot of money's worth of wax.

But the same candle is almost three feet high. It boasts a [illegible] glitter and realistic dripping design.

Others in like ilk sell at $3 each. But they're only two ft. high

* * *

Swirled wax trees, huge fat laughing Santa. Chimney resting Santa and the same jolly gent cavorting across the snows in his sleigh. These gems go to the public (that's you 'n me) at prices ranging from [illegible] to [illegible] each.

A pretty holiday mark is a snow-glitter form, one tall red candle, pine cones and sprigs of [illegible] selling at 49c for the ensemble. Others in larger editions sell at prices from 29c to $15.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS

Everyone Has Alibi For His Own Faults

What is your favorite alibi?

All of us have our pet excuses by which we seek to camouflage our faults and weaknesses to the world and to justify our shortcomings to our own souls.

Perhaps the most overworked alibi in the world is heredity. You rarely meet any one who will acknowledge his faults are his own. Oh, dear no. They are always poor grandfather's or grandmother's. Apparently the chief advantage in having ancestors is to have some one to whom you can pass the buck.

Anyway, did you ever know of a drunkard who confessed that the reason that he drank was because he liked the taste of liquor or because of the kick he got out of it?

Never. He tells you between maudlin sobs that he is the victim of heredity and that drink is in his blood.

Did you ever know of a virago of a woman who was ashamed of giving way to her temper? Far from it.

On the contrary, she is rather proud of taking after grandmamma, who was so high strung that she kept everybody about her paralyzed with fear. Did you ever know of a slovenly housekeeper who blamed herself for her laziness and inefficiency?

Not on your lief. She merely remarks that it doesn't run in her family to be good cooks and goes along wallowing in filth and poisoning her husband and children.

TEMPERAMENT

Another alibi that is called upon to do [illegible] service is temperament. You never hear a man confess that he is shiftless and trifling and no account and that he would rather [illegible] than work his passage. No, indeed.

The reason he never sticks to a job is because he is so temperamental [illegible] bring himself to do ordinary, commonplace things, such as keeping books or selling goods or making bricks.

Nylon Blouses—The Perfect Christmas Gifts

It's a "natural"—as they say—that the perfect gift of this mid-twentieth century Christmas should be one of the twentieth century's most outstanding achievements—the nylon blouse.

Pretty blouses have always been popular presents and the magic properties of nylon make them even more so. It's wonderful to realize that those fine dainty sheers with ruffles and laces and embroiderdies no longer entail hours of laboring with a hot iron! If you want something more substantial there are soft nylon tricot blouses; nylon crepe shirts; and even nylon velvet — all fashion right and all easy to care for.

SOME WOMEN seem to be married more to a dust mop than a husband. If you must neglect one or the other it might be better to neglect the mop.

WHY GROW OLD

Better to Neglect Mop Than Your Husband

By Josephine Lowman

A recent article in The Journal Of Living points up a thought which many women should think over if they wish to remain young and happy.

The article is titled, "Husband Keeping More Important Than Housekeeping." It is authored by Margaret Fishback.

Miss Fishback says, "When your husband burns a hole in the best carpet, grin and bear it. A rug isn't half so hard to replace as a good husband.

"Women who concentrate too much on a spick and span house may be defeating themselves. The average man wants to live in a home, not a hospital, and resents constant upheavals in the name of good housekeeping."

There are two sides to the question.

Let us start at the beginning, [illegible] us conceal the fact that nothing can give a woman such a glow or keep her so youthful or make her so beautiful, as being well loved by her husband. That is a precious asset and it is worth whatever you have to pay for it, if your husband is worth investing in.

On the other hand, if your husband expects you to do your own work, and maybe take care of a child or two, it does seem that he might help the situation along by [illegible]

However, I believe that more women are at fault in being too meticulous as housekeepers. Many women who are called "wonderful housekeepers" are poor companions, and your husband would, no doubt, choose to have you gay and inspiring even if there is a little dust scattered about.

If you would like to have my leaflet No. 63 "Keeping Romance Alive," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Crippled Girl Wins Stirring Appluase

BLACKPOOL, England — (CP) — Loudest and most stirring applause at Blackpool Musical Festival was for Jean Snarr, 17-year-old warehouse worker, when she sang "My Heart Is Like a Singing Bird".

For Jean has been a cripple all her life and has undergone nine operations on her leg.

To reach the platform she had to hobble down the hall on crutches —but as she said afterwards: "I never give up hope that one day I shall be able to do without them."

Homemakers Now Take Second Place

CCF Meeting Speaker Spurs Feminine Participation in Public Politics

Women must be thought of as citizens first and homemakers second if they are to play a greater role in the future of the CCF and society in general.

This is the opinion of Mrs. Beatrice Trew, vice-president of the Saskatchewan CCF, who spoke in the Masonic Temple last night at the invitation of the Provincial Women's Committee of the Alberta CCF.

Addressing delegates to the 1949 Alberta Provincial CCF Convention, Mrs. Trew discussed the part that women have always played in world affairs.

She expressed the belief that since women have got the vote they have raised the standard of political life in Canada.

SHOULDER TO SHOULDER

Women's place in the CCF is "right beside the men," stated Mrs. Trew.

Attitude of both sexes to women in public life is still largely traditional and discriminatory, in her opinion. Women are prevented from participating fully in public life because of family responsibilities.

In spite of this, she added, women have been a great force in the CCF and are now fulfilling important executive tasks.

Mrs. Anne Peters of Lethbridge was re-elected president of the Provincial Women's Committee of the Alberta CCF at the annual business meeting which preceded Mrs. Trew's address.

Mrs. D. L. Shortliffe of Edmonton is the new vice-president succeeding Mrs. Gordon MacPhee of Camrose.

WOMEN ENCOURAGED

In her report, Mrs. Peters stated that the purpose of the women's committee is to create enthusiasm for CCF principles and to induce more women to join the movement.

Review of the year's work revealed that district representatives have been appointed, a constitution committee set up and a women's column begun in the People's Weekly.

Mrs. Nellie Peterson, provincial president of the CCF, voiced appreciation of the work done by the women's committee.

Reports were given by Mrs. Jean McNeely, chairman of the constitution committee and Mrs. Harry Scott, secretary. District delegates also reported on the work done during the year.

Corsages were presented to Mrs. Trew, Mrs. Peters and Mrs. Peterson by Miss Edith Paterson of Calgary.

Musical interlude was presented by members of the University CCF study group.

Ladies' Auxiliary to the Fraternal Order of Eagles will meet Monday at 8:30 p.m. in the Eagles' Hall. Ladies having novelties for the bazaar are requested to bring them.

Mirror Remedies Angular Rooms

If the lines of the living room seem a little too angular, there's a new mirror shape that's supposed to remedy the situation.

The mirrors have just been introduced in New York. They're free form outlines—neither square nor round. The designers (Nurre Company) say the irregular outline is a good companion to the square, plain lines of modern interiors.

Mirrors have long been used to achieve interesting effects in decorating the living room. But so far the shapes have stuck fairly [illegible] familiar round, square and rectangular line.

The new mirrors come with several types of frames. One is a new shadow-tone technique which makes a border design on the mirror to give the illusion of a frame. This is a much cheaper way to get a framed effect than the traditional engraving.

DESIGNED especially to assist in the widespread exploration for oil in Alberta, kitchen and bathroom trailers equipped with city facilities, along with up-to-the-minute diners, bunkhouses and even offices—all on wheels—are now available. Manufactured in Edmonton at Northwest Industries Limited, two shifts are required to meet the growing demand for the mobile camps.

Mobile Trailer Camp on Market

Seven-Unit Hotel on Wheel Provides Modern Comforts

By James Rose

The search for oil must go on. Winter or summer the geophysical crews continue their hunt for this precious liquid gold. With the chase taking them northward the difficult question of accommodation for the crews is becoming an ever pressing problem.

Last winter many of the crews had to live under conditions of great hardship, now for some of them at least, all that is a thing of the past. No matter how far they get from the comforts of civilization they will have with them all the advantages and facilities of a modern well appointed hotel

Northwest Industries Limited, of Edmonton has designed a completely mobile camp consisting of seven trailer units. Each trailer is 22 feet long by 8 feet wide, and has inside head room of 7 feet.

The individual units are of welded steel structure with 16 guage aluminum paneling on the exterior, while the interior is finished in quarter inch plywood lining on walls and roof. The floor is constructed of inch and a quarter clear edge grain fir. The whole trailer is insulated with two inch fibreglass insulation.

Special features of interest in the general construction include, three circulating fans, and three 110 volt ceiling lights, simple levelling supports, 10,000 lb. Timken axle complete with Midland vacuum brake assembly, and International K-7 heavy duty springs.

LUXURY LIVING

A mobile camp consists of three bunkhouse trailers, kitchen trailer, service or bathroom trailer, dining trailer and office trailer, all of which are the last word in well-planned luxury living.

I was taken over one of these camps recently by John Sharpe, the man responsible for their design and in charge of making them at the plant. He told me that they are working two shifts a day to keep up with the demand.

As we wandered from trailer to trailer, I was struck by the many possibilities of this hotel on wheels. It would be ideal as a tourist hostel in the remoter beauty spots or for large organized hunting parties

KITCHEN AND BATHROOM

Perhaps the two most interesting trailers in the camp are the kitchen and bathroom units. I doubt if a single necessary feature has been left out, and there are certainly many included just to make life that little bit easier and less spartan.

The kitchen includes running hot and cold water, a 10 cubic foot deep freeze unit, an electric refrigerator and a six-burner propane gas cooker with griddle. In addition to the three usual circulating fans, the kitchen is fitted with a wall-mounted exhaust fan. There is a good deep sink and a cook's preparing table.

The bathroom trailer is equally lavish. Fitted with two individual shower units, four wash basins with running water ,a 40-gallon propane gas hot water heater and two flush-type toilets. It has such useful additional items as power sockets above the basins for the use of electric razors, a separate locker for each man to keep his toilet kit in, and a Bendix washing machine

CAREFULLY PLANNED

The whole camp down to the last detail is a marvel of careful planning.

Sewage disposal, including kitchen waste, is effected by boring a five hundred foot hole on site, firing one or two shots in it, and then standing the kitchen or bathroom unit over the hole. Two holes are bored, one for the bathroom trailer and one for the kitchen, and special adaptors connect the trailer with the hole, eliminating any possible chance of smell.

The seven-unit camp, complete with all fixtures and fittings, costs in the region of $30,000.

Good Plumbing Needs Proper Installation

Good plumbing is not only necessary from the sanitary point of view but also from the economical since it accounts for approximately 10% of the total cost of the house, exclusive of heating. Wise home-owners will ensure that the most value is received from money put into this important item of house-building.

A plumbing installation is generally two systems of piping, the supply pipes and the drainage pipes. When installed correctly they are on much the same principle in all houses and practically no care or maintenance is required. Years of service with a minimum of upkeep can only be assured by proper installation. In the quest for good trouble-free plumbing the following points should be of assistance

Water in the supply system is under pressure and therefore small pipes are used while waste water in the drainage system flows by gravity requiring larger pipes. Where public sewer and water facilities are available the plumbing installation will begin with the lateral connections to the street lines.

These connections, from outside foundation to sewer and water lines, are generally carried out by the municipality and charged to the builder. From beginning to end the installation of all plumbing must be in accordance with local regulations.

DRAIN PIPE HINTS

The house sewer should be of cast iron, vitrified clay, concrete bell and spigot pipe, asbestos-cement or tar impregnated cellulose fibre pipe. Drain lines below the basement floor should be either extra heavy (XH) cast iron, medium weight cast iron, vitrified socketed clay tile, or tar impregnated cellulose fibre.

If cast iron is used, the joints should be packed with oakum and caulked with lead or other materials with a similar standard of performance.

Vent lines and short waste water lines, two inches or less in internal diameter, should be at least standard weight steel pipe galvanized with cast or malleable galvanized fittings. Recessed fittings on waste lines are desirable.

Cold and hot water piping should be at least standard weight steel pipe galvanized. In districts where the water supply is known to have a corroding effect on galvanized pipe, copper or brass tubing or piping with copper or brass fittings should be used, particularly for the hot water supply lines.

Copper or brass is a quality job but steel pipe galvanized, commonly but incorrectly termed galvanized iron pipe, is quite acceptable where economy in initial cost is the chief concern.

In choosing piping material consideration should be given to length of life as well as first cost. All materials and equipment should, of course, be new.

QUALIFIED PLUMBER URGED

It is important that fittings be of the same materials as the pipe with which they are used. Under no circumstances should galvanized fittings be used with copper pipe or copper fittings with galvanized pipe.

In a properly installed drainage system the fixtures should drain quickly and quietly. Venting, which lets air into the system, facilitates the flow of drainage and helps to prevent backing up of raw sewage.

The installation of present day plumbing should not be undertaken by those who do not have the mechanical knowledge, tools and thorough understanding of the plumbing bylaws or standards pertaining to the particular community. It is heavy work and errors in calculation can be very costly if a qualified man must be called in to correct mistakes and omissions

A final word of advise—have a qualified plumber install the best fixtures and fittings that finances will allow, and be assured of years of trouble-free operation.

Solid Cedar Cuts Cost of Houses

Solid cedar houses to reduce costs of four rooms below $5,000 have been built experimentally on Vancouver's Fraserview project by B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

One with 3-inch walls enclosing 768 sq. ft. of floor can be built in 250 manhours for $4,580. With insulation and separate interior finish the same house costs $4,978. Walls are of 3-inch and 2-inch solid cedar planks which lock into one another and form both inside and outside finish in the cheaper house.

Built by any comparable conventional standard, the same house would cost at least $500 to $900 more, proponents say.

Easterners will want to know whether and how they can beat a more rigorous climate and more stringent municipal building bylaws with this type of construction.

The wolverine is a nocturnal, meat-eating animal related to the weasel, about the same size as a bulldog and noted for its power and cunning.

GIVES TO ALBERTA
CANADA'S BRIGHTEST FUTURE
Throughout the vast expanse of this Dominion no province holds such a promise for Tomorrow as does Alberta. Here lie immeasurable resources—untapped, undeveloped, perhaps even undreamed of. More money per capita is pouring into Alberta than into any other province. People are also arriving in a steadily increasing flow. Established industries are expanding, and new ones are getting under way. Midst this momentum of Progress one asset stands forth with a lustre all its own—Natural Gas. Nothing else can give industry comparable efficiency . . . nothing else can give homes the same smartness and effortless comfort.
The fuel that other places dream of for tomorrow is Alberta's—and yours—today.

Some Birds Cover Eggs To Keep Them Cool

Why do birds sit upon their eggs? This may seem a very stupid question, and the obvious reply is that they do so to keep them warm during the period of incubation.

But although most birds sit upon their eggs solely for that purpose, there is one kind that does so merely with a view to keeping them cool.

This little bird, known as the Egyptian black-backed courser or crocodile bird, is about the size of a starling. It lays its two or three eggs within a shallow depression which it excavates in the sand to a depth of several inches, after which it covers them up again.

SHADE FROM SUN

During the early morning and in the evening the eggs are left untouched, but when the sun begins to rise in the sky, and the scorching heat beats down upon the sand, the bird returns to its hidden treasure and sits on the nest to shade the eggs.

If it neglected to do this, the eggs would get cooked and the young one would not hatch out.

Sometimes the bird will fly off to a stream, dip its breast into the water, and then return and settle down upon the nest, while at other times it will swallow a little water and then spurt out again over the sand beneath which the eggs repose. This is done to keep the eggs cool.

FRIEND OF CROCODILE

A strange association exists between this bird and the crocodile. As is well known, the latter is very fond of basking in the sunshine while resting upon the bank of a river, with its mouth wide open.

A crocodile bird comes along, flutters to the ground, settles down beside the reptile, and then hops right into its open mouth and proceeds to eat leeches [illegible].

That the crocodile [illegible] proceeding is clearly [illegible] attitude to the bird, and the fact that it never attempts to close its jaws while the feathered toothpick is engaged in its work.

Sincerely,

Joan Walker

Uncle Wiggily's Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

Soft, white, fluffy and deep was the snow on Christmas Tree Hill, not far from Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning. Climbing up the hill were Uncle Wiggily, Mr. Whitewash the jolly North Pole bear with a South Pole accent and a dog gentleman. The last was Old Dog Tray.

The reason Old Dog Tray was going to school so late in life was that, when he was a young puppy dog, he had hated schools. But, on a visit to Joy Island, the Lady Mouse Teacher taught Mr. Tray how foolish and silly it was never to go to school. So Mr. Tray had said:

"I'm sorry I didn't go to school. Is it too late now?"

"Not at all, Mr. Tray," said Miss Mouse. "You will be very welcome at Hollow Tree School. Of course, since you are just learning your letters, you must be in the kindergarten class."

"I shall be glad to," barked Old Dog Tray. But he wasn't going to school this morning. Uncle Wiggily wanted Mr. Tray and jolly Mr. Whitewash to help him cut the Christmas tree.

So that's why Uncle Wiggily, Mr. Tray and Mr. Whitewash were going up the hill through the deep snow.

"Excuse me, Wiggy, suh," said Mr. Whitewash in his South Pole accent, "But is you'all goin' t' cut a big Christmas tree or a little, small Christmas tree this yeah, suh?"

"Oh, we must have a large tree this year, Whitie."

Uncle Wiggily suddenly stopped speaking. Mr. Whitewash, who was shuffling along ahead, turned and didn't see the bunny uncle.

"Whut all became of Wiggy, if you know, Mr. Tray, suh?"

"He was hopping along ahead of me," barked Old Dog Tray, and all of a sudden, he dropped out of sight."

Then Uncle Wiggily was heard calling: "Help! Help! I'm in a deep snow drift."

"Don't worry, Wiggy, suh," said Mr. Whitewash, "Ah'll soon pull you out." The Polar bear reached his long claws down into the snow hole and pulled up Uncle Wiggily. But, in a short time, Uncle Wiggily again fell into a snow hole. Again Mr. Whitewash pulled him out. Then the Polar bear said:

"Ah reckon, Wiggy, suh, Ah'd bettah carry yo' all on mah back! Ah'll give you a bear-back ride up th' hill."

Riding on the back of Mr. Whitewash, Uncle Wiggily didn't fall into any more snow holes. The three firends were near the top of the hill when, suddenly, a voice [illegible]

"Help! Help I'm caught in a trap!"

"Who are pou?" asked Uncle Wiggily. Th voeice replied

"I'm Foxie and I'm in a trap. Please help me out!".

The first Netherlands tramcars chugged through the country at a speed of 15 or 20 miles an hour, and stopped whenever a passenger wanted to get off or on.

Please enroll me in the Tawasi Club.

From the Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—Driving to get home for Christmas, the Commons this week was taking mighty swipes at the legislative tree and letting the chips fall where they might. The reluctance of members of all parties to get stuck in Ottawa for the Yule season was proving mighty helpful to the Government.

Trade Minister Howe at least once plunked a forcible stopper in the dragging debate on the Combines Report when he exclaimed: "Some of us want to get out of here."

At the same time, by holding over the House the spectre of being marooned in the Capital over Christmas, the Government was able to push along its legislation to set up three new departments with a minimum of discussion.

The Commons, too, had to swallow the unpleasant pill of Saturday's sittings in the drive to get home.

Whether the members after a session in Ottawa still believed in Santa Claus or not, they still wanted to be home when he arrived.

There wasn't a chance in the world the Government would do anything about the Opposition request for "expert assistance" in preparing debates—but the demand by Rev. E. G. Hansell, Social Credit member for Macleod, Alta., for a "research expert" for every member gave rise to interesting possibilities.

Some members thought Hansell had something; but they couldn't see the Government providing experts to help the Opposition in such attacks as those during the Combines debate.

STICKS TO GUNS

Other members said they would just as soon stick to the old hit-or-miss system of expressing their own views, rather than the capsulled opinions of some experts.

But Hansell this week was sticking to his guns. "I still think the Government should do something to help us ordinary members," he was maintaining, "and I still demand the services of a research expert."

Hansell, too, was tired of "sharing" his secretary with his roommate. Each member, he believed, should have his own steno.

While Revenue Minister McCann has promised to pare down his Income Tax Division by some 25 per cent this coming year, there will be no slicing of the Division's Intelligence Branch.

The Taxation Intelligence Branch has operated as enforcement agency for the past few years and in the Commons has been the subject of more direct attacks from members representing rural constituencies than any other single branch of Government.

'PERHAPS, SNOOPERS'

Its officers—especially by Western members—have been labelled "peepers" and "snoopers."

The branch has former RCMP personnel at its head and operates after somewhat the same fashion as the RCMP in tracking down tax evaders and even persons who have been a little slow in coughing up for the Revenue coffers.

Only time the branch ever appears in the news—however indirectly—is when one of its cases gets to court. Most times its investigations accomplish the desired result without court action.

Taxpayers have complained to the department, according to members of parliament, of documents being seized and of normal business activities being blocked by the branch's activities. Still the branch goes merrily on its way.

New Czech Purge Seen in Offing

LONDON, Dec. 3—(BUP)—Western diplomats predicted today that the Communists would renew their "purge" of the Czechoslovak middle class as soon as labor camps have "digested" the thousands already seized.

Conservative estimates, based on reliable reports from Prague, indicated that between 5,000 and 10,000 persons have been arrested. Western press reports had estimated the total as high as 40,000.

Water Short In N.Y.

NEW YORK, Dec 3.—(AP)—New York City Hotel and Restaurant Associations yesterday asked their member establishments not to serve water in their dining rooms unless patrons ask for it. The new move is to reduce the drain on dwindling water supplies.

'COMPLAIN'

Civil Service Must Be Civil PM Declares

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—The government wants to know about any cases in which immigration department employes are discourteous, Prime Minister St. Laurent told the commons yesterday. Anyone knowing of such discourtesy would do a service by bringing it to the attention of the department.

He was replying to A. L. Smith PC-Calgary West) who told of a case in which an immigrant, unable to speak English, was received with almost brutal rudeness in Calgary by an employe.

The immigrant woman had been working as a maid in his daughter's home and encountered extreme discourtesy when she and Mr. Smith's daughter went to inquire about the possibility of having the woman's husband come to Canada.

Ontario May Buck Road

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(BUP)—Ontario will refuse to co-operate on the building of the Trans-Canada highway, the Ottawa Journal reported today.

The Ontario government felt that the federal contribution of 50 per cent towards construction of the $300,000,000 road was not large enough, the paper said.

The federal stipulation that the road must be built by the most direct route meant that it would by-pass most Ontario cities, forcing the province to build expensive feeder roads, the Journal said.

Ontario government officials declined comment.

2 Heads, 2 Tails

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man., Dec. 3.—(CP)—A two-headed, two-tailed calf was still born recently on the farm of Hudson Mumm. Dr. J. Arbuthnot, veterinary, said today that it was a "one in a million" occurrence.

When she sits in a game she is slow even to advise beginners when they make a mistake in the play or bidding. However, if they do ask her a question you can rest assured that the answer will be an intelligent one, or she will refuse to answer.

I like the way she explained today's hand to one of her members. Phyllis said, "In response to the one spade bid North bid two spades, which is generally a weak bid. South has a perfect right to pass this, but if South elects to make another bid, which he did, of two no trump, then North, having more than just a minimum two spade response, is justified in bidding three spades, which will sign the hand off, or taking the hand direct to game."

The play of the hand is rather simple. The opening lead of the deuce of clubs should be won in dummy with the ace. A small diamond is led and the jack finessed. When it loses to the king and West returns another club, the declarer wins this with the king.

He should cash the ace of diamonds and ruff a diamond, pull two rounds of trump and ruff another diamond, thus holding his losses to two hearts and a diamond.

Socialistic Propaganda Under Fire

Co-operatives of this province are afraid of the CCF because of "socialistic propaganda being spread by some CCF supporters," I. V. Macklin, Grande Prairie, charged at party convention this morning.

Delegates spent nearly an hour arguing a resolution to deprive those members of the party who publicly campaign against CCF policies of their CCF membership.

The resolution also sought to give the provincial board power to expel members guilty of such conduct, and ask the national council to take similar steps in respect to violation of national policy.

The resolution, submitted by Leduc constituency association, was defeated. Only one delegate voted in favor.

But before the resolution was lost, provincial leader Elmer E. Roper said the party might as well disband now, unless this "intolerable situation" of disagreement among party members can be prevented.

He hinted strongly that the CCF national committee would crack down on members who disagree with party politics.

Arthur Thornton, Edmonton was elected president of the Woodsworth House Association; Leslie Harris, Beaver Lodge, was named vice-president; and Mrs. Jean McNeely, of Edmonton, as secretary-treasurer.

Members elected to the board were: Ray Bell, Carstairs, Henry Young, Wetaskiwin, Mr. Roper, J. E. Cook, Edmonton, Edith Patterson, Calgary, and Floyd Johnson, Edmonton.

Reds Nearly Seize Chiang

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHENGTU, China, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Chinese Communists almost caught Chiang Kai-Shek, No. 1 on their "war criminals list."

The generalissimo came close to capture at Chungking. It was so close his entire staff was jittery with fright.

Chiang had refused for several days to leave Chungking despite the pleas of his staff. He insisted that panic would break out if he left. Many officials never would get away.

He waited while the Communists marched even nearer to the city. Tuesday it became impossible to delay longer. He got in his car and set out for Peishim airfield in the northwestern outskirts.

ABANDONS AUTO

The jam of refugees on the highway was so great he had to abandon his automobile. He got out and walked part way. A jeep came along and he borrowed it.

It was midnight when he reached the field, where his skymaster plane waited. He boarded the skymaster but insisted on waiting until daylight Wednesday before taking off.

At daybreak, the plane took off. A few hours later Communist troops occupied Chungking.

The Reds, plunging deep into western China, cut the highway between Chengtu and Kunming, 390 miles to the south. This official report followed information that the Communists also had cut the route between Chengto and Chungking, 170 miles southeast.

U.S. Consul Pays China Employes Before Leaving

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—(UP)—American Consul-General Angus Ward today started paying off Chinese employes of the U.S. consulate in Mukden—one of his final acts before leaving for the United States.

The entire staff of 18 persons is scheduled to leave Mukden by 8 a.m. Wednesday Mukden time (5 p.m., MST, Tuesday) after more than a year of house arrest. The trip to this country will take at least a week.

It will involve a rail trip to Tientsin and then a sea journey through the Chinese Nationalists' proclaimed blockade of the port.

Noronic Inspector Given Reprimand

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—A transport department steamship inspector has been reprimanded by Transport Minister Chevrier as a result of the Noronic fire.

The official came before Mr. Chevrier who rebuked him for "laxity" in signing the certificate which allowed the vessel to ply lake waters.

The ship burst into flames last Sept. 17 with the loss of 118 lives.

ETS Inaugurates Shoppers' Service

Special shoppers' service of extra streetcars and buses is operating on all ETS lines, Superintendent Tom Ferrier said today.

With cars and buses crowded to capacity, he asked shoppers to ride during off-peak periods.

"Evening rush hour traffic is now heavier than ever experienced, and is getting worse every day. Shoppers can relieve this overcrowding by being on their way home before 4:30 p.m., he said.

All passengers can speed up service by leaving vehicles through centre exit doors, he added.

Equal Freight Rates Object of Alta. Brief

OTTAWA, Dec. 2.—(CP)—Alberta yesterday called for "equalization" of the freight-rate structure across the country.

The provincial government presented a brief to the Royal Commission on Transportation declaring that levelling of the rates charged in different Canadian territories would remove anomalies between these regions.

The Alberta brief was founded on the contention that the west's freight rates are higher than those of the east. It claimed equalization would eliminate rate "disparities" that gave advantage to the central provinces.

FLEXIBLE RATES

While urging application of the equalization principal, Alberta did not propose that all rates should be rigidly equalized from coast to coast. The 15,000-word brief conceded that a certain amount of flexibility must be allowed to take care of regional conditions.

The commission today also heard final evidence from Alberta on its contention that freight rates should be adjusted so as not to discourage the location of secondary industry in that province. An Alberta brief on this point said the rate structure now tends to have Alberta raw products moved out of the province for processing.

BALANCE NEEDED

Hu Harries, transportation adviser to the government, had declared the situation could be remedied by adjusting the relationship between freight rates on raw and processed materials, bringing them closer together.

He declared this would not involve lowering any single rate to the point where it would be "non-compensatory"—not profitable—to the railways. If necessary, one rate or another could be hoisted. The essential thing was to establish the proper relationship between the two sets of rates.

Crowds Cheer Santa Claus

Thousands of city children thronged the streets to cheer Santa Claus and all his helpers and friends, who rode in triumph in the big annual Eaton's Christmas parade today.

Santa was preceded by a dozen floats, four clown bands and a high school brass band.

Kiddies screamed their delight as they watched the float roll by depicting favorite characters from fairy tales and funny papers. Included were Ali Baba, Rubba-dud-dub three men in a tub, Neptune, Popeye, Snow White and Bugs Bunny.

Santa himself rode in his sleigh behind his reindeers.

Penitentiary Term Given

His two companions, Steve Konopelay, 18, of Brockville, Ont., and Allen McMillan of Calgary were remanded to December 10 for sentence by Magistrate A. I. Millar.

Miners Were Slaves, Calgary MP Claims

OTTAWA, Dec. 3.—(CP)—A Progressive Conservative member voiced some restrained praise of John L. Lewis in the commons last night.

"You know, when John L. Lewis proposes something it is very easy to say, 'oh, that man again!'" said A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary East) during consideration of health department estimates.

"Perhaps we use language a little more lurid than that; but if we are to be fair we must remem ber the condition of the miner i the United States and Canada be fore John L. Lewis rose to th top of that organization.

"I dislike lurid language, but the were practically wage slaves of th employers.

"Lewis now has a big head an thinks he runs the world, but I ca not help remembering the great ad vance in the comfort and income of the people who followed him."

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—"The better the deed, the better the day"—a pertinent motto for today. You have innate enthusiasm and the gift to amuse, entertain—by all means use these generously now.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) A day in which to give a little special attention to your talents, to improve health, mental outlook by first going to your church, then indulging refeshing, healthful pastime.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)—First on agenda are likely to be issues touching family, property, finances. Forget outside matters to attend to YOUR affairs. Joint opinions more likely to click. Don't overwork.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo)—Can't expect easy going unless you conserve, watch obligations and wise positions. Check any desire to remonstrate bossily or deny others' privileges. Ask with a smile.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) —May be well to watch on the side lines how things are progressing, then plan to execute your plans. Favors, achievement more lenient later in day, especially for business.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius)—Don't presume to go after new contracts or make added expenditures unless thoroughly informed. The hazards are too many. False moves can ruin good chances; be careful.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn)—On and off sort of day. You cannot just relax and expect things to operate favorably. Be on guard against unpredictable, needless circumstances, tempests from without.
